U. S. CRISIS IN MEXICO

DICTATOR RELEASES U. S. SHIP

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 24.—Grave rumors involving the safety of Felix Diaz at Vera Cruz were circulated here today. He had notified his friends that he would arrive here about 10 a. m., and when he failed to do so the report was quickly spread that "something had happened to him."

VERA CRUZ, Oct. 24.—The Mexican government yielded today to the protests of the United States and allowed the Ward liner Morro Castle to depart for Havana. Mrs. Lind, wife of the U. S. special envoy was on board.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—President Huerta of Mexico will not accept election to the Mexican presidency at the polls on Sunday. Secretary of State Bryan today announced that this word had come to President Wilson through Charge O'Shaughnessy.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—All the evening papers devote large space to the Mexican situation. Under such captions as "A Grave Crisis Imminent," pessimistic comments are made on the developments of the past forty-eight hours. The possibility of England becoming entangled is discussed.

LAREDO, Tex., Oct. 24.—The Mexican end of the international bridge was closed today, giving rise to reports that it would be kept closed until after the election Sunday to prevent United States interference.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 24.—General Huerta has boldly thrown down the gauntlet to the United States or to any other foreign power which interferes in Mexico, and threatens "The setting aside of the Monroe Doctrine" in the most bellicose statement which has come from the national palace.

The statement was issued early today after General Huerta and Sir Lionel Carden, the new British Ambassador, had conferred until 2 a. m.

General Huerta said:

Should the United States fail to recognize the established Mexican government it will run the risk of precipitating in Mexico a crisis which might bring the government in Washington face to face with foreign governments and which might result in the setting aside of the Monroe doctrine.

Huerta defended his own dictatorship, saying:

Defends Dictatorship.

The best government Mexico has ever had is by a few and it will be

Trail Boy Bandits' Crime Record

WOUNDED BOY BANDIT

William Dubois, seventeen-year-old desperado, shot and captured in gun battle with the police, who has been jailed pending an investigation of his record.

SUSPECT BOYS OF KILLING

William Dubois, the seventeen-year-old youth who, with two revolvers, fought off half a dozen pursuers in a three-mile chase after he and another boy were discovered robbing the Bleachery station in Waltham, today was charged with assault with intent to kill, in the Waltham Court, and sent to East Cambridge jail to await a hearing Monday. His record is being investigated.

Dubois told a rambling and often contradictory story. The police of twenty cities and towns surrounding Waltham are in the lookout for Dubois' companion, a boy his own age, whom he first called Green, and then said was Wilfred Reault.

The police believe there is a possibility the two boys are connected with the postoffice break two weeks ago when Constable Willis Heath of Salisbury was killed.

Dubois seemed dazed when he appeared in court today, but told this story:

Boy's Own Story.

I have never left home before this time. I left work in the Washington mill last Saturday, intending to go into the Athatic mill. Then I met Green, whose real name was Wilfred Reault, and who lives at No. 15 Melrose street, Lawrence. He persuaded me to go away with him.

We walked to Worcester, going through Wellesley—then went to Lowell by freight, and there Reault broke into a hardware store. I stayed in a box car. He got the revolvers and cartridges and gave me two revolvers. He got a screwdriver, too.

We walked to Watertown. He got into the Bleachery station with the screwdriver and a skeleton key.

I didn't give up at the first shot that hit me. The first was in the arm. I stayed hidden till a bullet hit me in the head.

I did not shoot at the officers. I shot into the water every time. I didn't mean to hit anyone. I could have if I had wanted to.

We were after some money so we could go West, but we didn't get any.

We have been sleeping out every night. We stole some clothes. I had three vests on, and an extra pair of shoes that I threw away.

Dubois was captured only after he had received seventeen bullets in his body, most of them from a shot gun in the hands of Harry Hall, a Watertown gate keeper.

When he appeared at court today he

CONFER ON JEROME'S NEW MOVE

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Special Attorney-General William T. Jerome went to Albany today to expedite the extradition of Harry Thaw. He said he hoped to secure a new extradition warrant from Governor Glynn upon the conspiracy indictment, voted here yesterday against Thaw and four other persons, and leave Albany tonight for Concord, N. H., to lay the warrant before Governor Felker.

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 24.—Harry Thaw's lawyers here are preparing a new attack upon William Travers Jerome, charging him with distorting evidence, in the attempt to drag Thaw back to Matteawan.

The Thaw counsel in this new move will ignore the indictment voted against Thaw, but will argue that Jerome's alleged distortion of evidence is a sign of his bad faith, and so that extradition should be refused. Jerome, meanwhile, is on his way to Concord to demand extradition. Felker is expected to again postpone decision.

Thaw's counsel base their charge against Jerome upon two affidavits and upon photographs which have been made at Matteawan Asylum. When Jerome originally applied for Thaw's extradition he filed affidavits which included statements sworn to by Thomas Malloy, a Matteawan employe, and by a chauffeur named Kohrs.

The affidavits filed by these men said that Thaw had come into the rooms in which these men were—on the morning of his escape—and had looked out of the window, seeing the rescuing auto approaching.

This was given as evidence of his knowledge of the plot for his escape, and so of his complicity in the conspiracy.

Deny Statement.

But Thaw's counsel now have affidavits from Malloy and Kohrs in which the men each say in substance:

"I do not believe I said that. If I did, it was just the opposite of what I meant to say. If I had known what was written in the statement, I could not have signed it. It is not a true statement of the facts."

In addition Thaw has photographs taken in Matteawan, showing, it is claimed, that from the windows of those rooms he could not have seen the automobile approaching.

On the basis of these facts, Thaw claims Jerome falsified or distorted the evidence. He says:

"As soon as I saw these affidavits, from my knowledge of conditions at Matteawan, I realized that they did not contain a full and accurate statement of the facts.

"I explained to my attorneys that the affidavits were made by honest men who would not willfully misstate the facts. I believed the statements had been secured in some tricky manner and signed under some misunderstanding. Our investigation was at once begun."

Thaw and his counsel will not rest their case upon this charge, however. They will declare that Thaw as an insane man, cannot be indicted for conspiracy.

Thaw himself is mystified by the news of the indictment. He heard the news over the telephone and received it with a smile.

Milholland Quits Harvard Football

Suffragist's Brother Has Trouble with One Knee.

Johnny Milholland, Harvard's speedy substitute end, was so disheartened over his failure to score two field goals during varsity practice yesterday that he announced today that he was through with football. He is the brother of the former Vassar suffragist, Inez Milholland, who was married recently, and has just returned to this country. One of Milholland's knees has given him considerable bother lately, and this clearly influenced his decision. This is the third valuable end that Coach Lou Leary has lost this Fall, Tudor Gardiner stepping out because of lack of strength for the strenuous pastime and H. Smith being dropped because of failure to pass his oral language examination.

Dietrick Demands Four Battleships

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—Representative Dietrick of Massachusetts introduced a resolution in the House today instructing the Committee on Naval Affairs to report an appropriation for four mammoth battleships.

John L. Buys Film Theatre

BROCKTON, Oct. 24.—John L. Sullivan, former pugilistic champion of the world, has entered the motion picture field. Together with a namesake of his, John W. Sullivan, they today purchased the Empire Theatre, in this city. Motion pictures are at present booked at the house, but it is the intentions of the Sullivans to enlarge the playhouse next year and run vaudeville.

1 Killed, 1 Dying; Bandit in Denver

DENVER, Oct. 24.—T. J. Chase of Palmer Lake, Col., was killed, and E. A. Clarke of this city was mortally wounded today by a bandit who terrorized pedestrians in the heart of the city and held up five of them before he escaped. An automobile filled with police tracked the robber from the scene of one hold-up to another only to arrive too late.

Fined $10 for Having "Sore Feet"

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—An old offender was fined $10 by Judge Mullowny. The defendant denied being drunk, saying his shoes hurt and he slipped. "And fell," supplemented the court.

Strike Holds Up Tourists in Venice

VENICE, Oct. 24.—Many American tourists were held in Venice by a strike of seamen which began today. No passenger ships were able to leave.

CONVICT-DOCTOR TELLS OF TREATING TRAGEDY VICTIM

Sensational testimony to the effect that Rear Admiral Eaton had arsenic in large quantities in his possession some time afternoon in the death trial at Plymouth.

Jacob W. Brown, a former practicing physician in Boston, testified that he had sold the admiral 4,600 arsenic tablets containing forty-six grains of the poison, and that once he saw sixty grains of arsenic in as many capsules in the admiral's hands.

DECLARED ADMIRAL WELCOMED DEATH.

Brown declared the admiral made these statements to him:

"If I were found dead at any time, somebody would be accused of poisoning me.

"If I do not get better and return to my normal condition, I do not care how soon I die."

Brown is a white-haired convict, a veteran of the Civil War who has spent twenty-eight of his eighty-two years in State Prison. He was brought from the State Hospital at Bridgewater to Plymouth today to testify for Mrs. Jennie May Eaton, accused of slaying the admiral.

With the testimony of today's witnesses the stage was cleared for the trial drama for the accused widow to take the stand this afternoon or tomorrow to bare her whole life story to the jury.

The expected appearance of Mrs. Eaton led to a crush of spectators, mostly women, at the courthouse today.

Brown, who testified the admiral told him a lady, who had eaten one of the admiral's arsenic tablets, had died—followed Judge George W. Kelley on the stand. Judge Kelley was the closest friend the admiral and Mrs. Eaton had. He declared their relations were always most affectionate.

Asked Judge to Care for Widow.

Judge Kelley said he had given Mrs. Eaton, at her request, a loan of $10 to pay the cost of the trip of herself and the youthful Dorothy Eaton to Lowell to attend the admiral's funeral. The judge declared the admiral also remarked to him:

"If anything happens to me look out and care for Jennie."

NEW HAVEN STOCK DOWN TO ONLY 81

New Haven touched a new low record price again today in New York, selling at 81¾. In 1907 the stock sold as high as 254. Last year its high was 142.

Boston & Maine in Boston sold at 85, off 8, today. The price at which New Haven was quoted in New York was the low record since 1904.

Boston & Maine touched 208 in 1902 and last year sold as high as 190½. Both issues have declined this year because of dividend conditions.

The Boston & Maine dividend rate has been passed and the New Haven has been cut from 8 to 6 per cent. per annum, and is going to be reduced. It is expected to 4 at the next quarterly declaration.

Fears of a receivership for Boston & Maine was weakened that issue within a day.

Odds Now 2 to 1 on Mitchel's Election

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—John Purroy Mitchel was favorite in the betting line on the Curb today at odds of 2 to 1. Twenty-five hundred dollars was bet that the fusion candidate would win the mayoralty by greater plurality.

Ask Roosevelt to Find Lost Explorer

TROY, O., Oct. 24.—Theodore Roosevelt has been asked to find Wilbur Cromer, twenty-three, a wealthy young man of this place, whose friends fear he has been killed by cannibals in the wilds of Brazil.

Colonel Roosevelt will make the search during his present trip to the southern continent.

Sharing Cromer's supposed fate is Professor Page, a Chicago scientist.

On the verge of nervous collapse from incessant worry over his fate is Miss Laura Belle Sensour, twenty-one, Cromer's sweetheart.

TWO RESCUERS LOST IN MINE; FEAR ALL DEAD

DAWSON, N. M., Oct. 24.—Two members of the rescue squad in the explosion that wrecked Stag Canon Mine No. 2 were lost in the workings early today, and are believed to have been killed. Two other men had narrow escapes, but were saved. The missing men wore helmets, but had a scanty supply of oxygen with which to fight off the foul gases.

After a second sleepless night, the entire population of Dawson, nearly 1,600 persons, was gathered today about the shaft, placing their hopes and prayers against the prediction that 223 miners would be found dead before the final toll of the worst mine disaster in the history of the mining settlement was recorded.

Woman and aged men refused to go home while rescuers were frantically digging into the mine toward the chambers that held the men imprisoned by the explosion of Wednesday. Small children slept with their heads pillowed in the laps of anxious, wakeful mothers.

Temporary shelters were filled with townsfolk. Fire was burning close to the workings where the 200 or more miners were imprisoned. The blaze started in another shaft which connects with No. 2 mine and rescuers were unable to reach the flames.

J. C. Roberts, chief of the Federal mine rescuers, who was directing shifts of fifteen men at a time as they drilled toward the cavern where the miners were caught behind a solid wall of dirt and rock, said today that he had abandoned all hope of finding another live man behind the pile of debris.

Thirty-eight dead and twenty-three living had been taken from the mine when Roberts lost hope. A miner, who was found nearly dead, shattered from the fallen rock by the body of a mine mule at 6:15 last evening, was the first live man found in twelve hours.

Hub Man Robbed of $5,000.

TOLEDO, Oct. 24.—Joseph Otis of Boston, a traveling salesman, notified the police that a porter disappeared with six grips containing between $4,000 and $5,000's worth of jewelry.

Boston Girl in Flight with Baby

Now Wife of Rich Mexican and Faces Kidnaping of Child.

Senora Jean Campbell de Astiz, formerly a Boston telegraph operator, whose beautiful voice won her a wealthy Mexican for a husband, and who since has separated from him to protect her child, has disappeared, according to New York dispatches today.

She was living with her sister at No. 422 state street, Brooklyn. Not long ago she fled from Mexico—"escaped"—as she herself said, and came to the United States. Her latest disappearance was voluntary. She told her sister she feared her husband would attempt to kidnap the baby, and then left the apartment.

While in Boston she worked at the Copley-Plaza. Few people knew her identity as a Mexican senora. When she left the Boston hotel, it was with the expectation of opening a fight for a share of her husband's estate for the baby. Her disappearance is expected to be followed by sensational developments.

Court Helps Groom Who Forgot License

Waived Five Days Wait for B. A. Ferrar and C. Elizabeth Willett.

Bernard A. Ferrar, of No. 59 Pinckney street, and his bride, who was Miss C. Elizabeth Willett, of No. 28 Tefft street, Dorchester, are on their honeymoon today, granted by Judge Joseph H. Churchill permitting them to wed without waiting the five days after securing a marriage license, as required by law.

Plans for the event at the home of the bride were jolted when Ferrar discovered he had forgotten about the wedding license. He reached the office at No. 100 Summer street just before closing time, expecting to receive the necessary certificate. To his surprise he was told that there must be an interval of five days. Judge Churchill then came to his aid. The Rev. Herbert Hamlet performed the ceremony.

Jews Observe Final Festival

Simhath Torah, the Hebrew festival, was ushered in in all synagogues of Boston, when the elders marched through the aisles with the Scrolls of the Law, followed by children carrying flags and candles. Simhath Torah is the concluding festival of a nine-day observance of the Feast of Tabernacles.

Train Kills Woman.

WILKESBARRE, Oct. 24.—Bertha Rodski, eighteen, was instantly killed and Ollie Novalik, seventeen, was injured by an engine near the Delaware & Hudson yards here early today while walking on the tracks on their way to work.

GUARDING GERM LAIR TO ARREST WOMAN PLOTTER

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—With post office inspectors on guard twenty-four hours a day around the laboratory of the author of the "deadly germ letters" that have been received by prominent Chicago women in one of the biggest blackmail plots in local history, it would not surprise the police if arrests of a man and woman suspected were made today, as a result of finger tip clews gained.

The "germ letter" author's lair is within a block of the county hospital according to Chief Post Office Inspector Stuart, who received the information from a West Side physician.

Niece of Sherman Fined as Smuggler

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Mrs. Frank B. Wilborg, niece of the late General W. T. Sherman, and wife of the wealthy printing ink manufacturer, formerly of Cincinnati, was fined $1,750 on a charge of smuggling. The court scored her.

BERLIN, Oct. 24.—Mrs. Elizabeth Montefiore of London, who was engaged with Mrs. Lucille Rand, an American woman, in a charitable enterprise to aid the families of destitute London strikers, was arraigned in police court here today charged with abduction in removing children without their parents' consent, and was remanded until Wednesday. Mrs. Rand, a wealthy California woman, must appear October 29 to answer a similar charge.

Threaten Strike of 15,000 in Worcester

WORCESTER, Oct. 24.—Fifteen thousand men engaged in the building trades in Worcester may strike in sympathy with the steamfitters, after a vote of the officials of the Central Labor Union and Building Trades department, which will recommend a strike at the meeting of the C. L. U. next Friday.

SUE SHERIFF FAIRBAIRN IN $35,151 LOSS

Because a Progressive candidate charged District Attorney John J. Higgins with inaction, the latter made known today that he has brought suit against Sheriff John R. Fairbairn on behalf of Middlesex County for $50,000 as the result of shortages in the accounts of the East Cambridge House of Correction, discovered shortly after the death of a keeper who had them in charge.

The defalcation amounts, according to the report of the American Audit Company, to $35,151.

The suit is based on an action of contract or tort, and is merely a formality on the part of the county and the district attorney. If decision is given adversely to the sheriff, it is probable that another will be brought against his bondsmen.

Masonic Temple to Be Ready July, 1915

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—The contract for the Scottish Rite Temple in this city as awarded by the Supreme Council of the 33rd degree of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite Free Masonry for the southern jurisdiction, calls for the final completion of the building by July 1, 1915, at a cost of $500,000.

Plan to Keep "Big Tim's" Seat Vacant

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—The seat in Congress vacant by the death of Timothy D. Sullivan may not be filled this Fall. An application has been drawn up asking the Board of Elections be restrained from printing on the ballots the names of any candidate in the thirteenth district, which Sullivan represented.

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 24.—The question of suffrage for women of Texas will be submitted to the voters at a Democratic primary election, in July 1914, if plans of the Texas Equal Suffrage Association work out successfully.

MONEY LENDER SUED, CLAIM HE SEIZED PIANO

Claiming that he took a piano from her home, and assaulted her daughter, Mrs. Mary A. Sanders of Washington street, Brookline, and her daughter Marion, are suing Herbert B. Budding, a money lender, in the Superior Court.

It is alleged that Mrs. Sanders borrowed $20 and gave a mortgage on her piano as security. She declared in court that she had believed she had paid him all that she owed him.

Budding alleges that she was still in his debt and when he learned that the piano had been moved from Lexington to Brookline he made a search for their new home and when he found it, removed the piano.

Ruth Sanders, the sixteen-year-old daughter, testified that on the day Mr. Budding appeared at their home, she and her sister Marion were dressing.

She heard the knock, she declared, and Mr. Budding was at the door. Budding, she claims, then brushed by her and her sister Marion, who was standing behind her, and went into the room where the piano was.

Her sister, who is suing, she claimed was made nervous and excitable by the appearance and conduct of the men.

Water on Trains "Diluted Sewage"

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—One great railroad system has been furnishing drinking water to its passengers which experts of the public health service pronounced after bacteriological examination to be nothing less than "diluted sewerage."

Surgeon General Rine reported that the railroad has been filling water tanks of its coaches at a supply 300 yards down stream from the sewerage outlet of a large eastern city. An examination disclosed over 60,000 bacteria in each teaspoonful of water. The investigator reported the water was "turbid," and was "grossly polluted."

Somerville Mayor Will Permit Tango

But New Dances Must Be Done with Propriety, at Least in Public.

While Mayor Burns of Somerville does not object to the "bunny hug," "tango," "bear dance," or any of the latest dances, he does insist that those who engage in them shall keep within bounds.

"I realize," the Mayor states in the letter to public dance hall proprietors, "that the new type of dances has come to stay, but they must be danced with propriety and not in a manner that might offend others."

Otherwise they will lose their licenses.

Turtle Serum Used for Years by Expert

Berlin Doctor Tells Congress He Abandoned Use as Ineffective.

BERLIN, Oct. 24.—At the session of the international tuberculosis congress, devoted to a discussion of "The chirurgical treatment of tuberculosis of the lungs," Professor Dr. A. Moeller, a leading Berlin authority on tuberculosis, submitted a report on Dr. Franz Ferdinand Friedman and his turtle bacilli treatment, pointing out that he himself had years before bred tubercle bacilli from cold-blooded animals and used them in treating tuberculosis.

He abandoned the method because equally good results were obtained by treatment with tuberculin without the extreme danger of living bacilli.

LOVE STORY OF EVELYN NESBIT AND HARRY THAW

CHAPTER LIII.

"Hints of arguments and questions deep."—Shakespeare.

The week following the return from Europe of Harry's mother was one of endless argument between Harry and his mother and of equally busy speculation by press and public as to who was in the Thaw case, anyhow.

Harry's mother naturally leaned toward Black, Olcott, Gruber & Bonynge, who were her own counsel and had served her late husband in many legal issues.

The widow knew that this firm was powerful and wise. She respected Judge Olcott's opinion deeply. When she learned that Judge Olcott had held that Harry's only chance was through an insanity plea she felt in her own heart that, distasteful and lacking in heroics as the plea would be, it was probably the only one which would avail for her wayward son.

Doing His Best She Knew.

Mrs. Thaw knew that Judge Olcott, whatever he might think of Harry and his career, was doing the very best for the youth that his long legal experience and his professional acumen could tell him to do.

If the case had been the biggest kind of a civil suit the widow would have unquestioningly followed Judge Olcott's opinion rigidly.

But, with her son's very life at stake, the widow was almost beyond power of reasoning.

She realized that, if Harry stoutly combated an insanity plea, the chances of his being deemed legally insane were perilously slim.

Insanity was a role in which, in this case, the prisoner must be in full sympathy.

On the other hand, Mrs. Thaw was not opposed to Clifford W. Hartridge for any particular reason. He was a friend of Harry. He was a lawyer of repute. Harry was enthusiastically confident in his ability to win freedom for the prisoner.

Harry was possessed of the conviction that he could be acquitted through the "unwritten law."

Mother Afraid of Jerome.

But his mother was afraid, pitiably afraid, lest this defence collapse under the merciless attack which she knew would be made upon it by the implacable Jerome.

Mrs. Thaw knew that New York State was not "Dixie" territory and that Northern juries are less swayed by the "murder for honor" plea, than are Southern ones.

Also, Mrs. Thaw, though loving her son devotedly, was not wholly blinded by maternal affection. She knew that Harry's career as a wild, impetuous youth would make him fair target for Jerome's arrows.

The mother thought of Judge Olcott's assertions that insanity was the only way. She thought of Hartridge and his new entry to the case. She thought of her reckless son, bound to rule his own lawyers. Then she thought of the stern law, of the sworn prosecutor and—a last and awful image—she thought of the electric chair and its gruesome purpose.

Then the mother's weary brain would travel again around the dark circle of wonder, fear and doubt.

By very irony of fate the mother, who had done no wrong, was worried almost to death, while the son, the homicide, was comparatively cheerful. He believed that he was justified in shooting White and that he would be freed.

Jerome Breaks Silence.

To add to the mother's terror just then, some reporter found District Attorney Jerome at Atlanta, on his Southern trip. Jerome was asked what he thought about an "unwritten law" defence.

For the first time since the shooting, Jerome spoke directly on the issues of the case. He said:

This is not a case of honor, but of jealousy. There is no difference of opinion between North and South in the matter of invading a man's home. In the North, if a man is wronged and takes the law in his own hands, he gets the sympathy of the masses. But, in the Thaw case, this feature does not apply.

The fact that the man is a millionaire is the only difference between this and many other cases we have to try.

This cold and unsentimental summing up of the State's view of the slaying felt like a hammer upon the mother's heart. She could picture to herself the trial of her son. She could see the defence trying, by the "unwritten law," to bolster Harry up as a man who, moved to great and righteous wrath by the despoiler of his home, took the law in his own hands.

Hartridge Gets Papers.

But the mother could also see Jerome crashing through this defence and showing her son merely as a common murderer, as one who had slain another man because he hated the victim, because he felt that he could do it and escape punishment.

But the mother, in one way was helpless. She had to listen to Harry and to bow to his demands, so far as possible. Harry argued in behalf of Hartridge every time he saw his mother. His incessant demands had their effect.

It was reported that Harry had stormily declared he would have Hartridge or none, also that Hartridge had said he would not withdraw from the case except by Harry's orders.

Hartridge offered a motion in the New York Supreme Court that Judge Olcott be ordered to surrender any remaining papers in the Thaw case. This step provoked Judge Olcott to say:

"I don't understand this new motion, except that it is perpetual motion."

This legal sarcasm from the lips of his brother attorney was told to Hartridge, who was not particularly pleased.

He said, for Judge Olcott's benefit:

I would advise friends of Judge Olcott to inform him that it would be just as well for him to refrain from remarks like that in the future.

Judge Olcott did not oppose the Hartridge motion, however. He turned over to the new counsel all the papers he had in the Thaw case of every description.

The papers included two particularly important documents.

One was Evelyn's history of her own career, as dictated to Judge Olcott's stenographers at Evelyn's great distress.

The other document was a report made to Judge Olcott by Dr. Allen McLane Hamilton, the alienist, who had succeeded by making three examinations of Harry in regard to his sanity.

This report was that Harry was insane according to men in close touch with Judge Olcott. Dr. Charles A. Dana, who had also been retained to examine Harry, had no report to make because Harry wouldn't let him come near him. But Dr. Hamilton's report was just what the defence wanted, as intimated by the statement by Attorney McManus of Judge Olcott's office a week before, that Dr. Hamilton's findings were "very satisfactory."

With the surrender of all the legal papers to Hartridge a report immediately circulated that Harry had triumphed in every particular, that he had bent his mother once more to his own will, and that the defence would be justification through the "unwritten law."

But, at this very time, District Attorney Jerome, from his southern vacation place, had word sent to Asst. McDonald and Flint, alienists for the State, to hold themselves in readiness to be called upon at any time. This was an open hint at a lunacy commission.

To Be Continued.

EVELYN TELLS OF THE SHOOTING OF WHITE

Harry was standing about five feet from Mr. White directly in front of him. He had his hand outstretched, perfectly still. Then I heard three shots. I could not have prevented it even if I had been at his side. I could only raise my hand to my lips: "Merciful Heaven!" I said, "he's shot him!"

Harry turned and walked toward me.

I said: "Harry, what have you done—what have you done!"

He leaned over and kissed me.

"It's all right," he said, smilingly. "I have probably saved your life."—Evelyn Thaw's story of the killing of White in Sunday's AMERICAN.

25,000 GIRLS IN FOOD WORK, SAYS CASSIDY

To increase the production of food stuffs and thus help to reduce the high cost of living, the Department of Agriculture has formed, throughout the country clubs of boys and girls. Although the department helps out these organizations by certain funds appropriated, it depends to a great degree upon local trade organizations in the furtherance of the work. Mr. Cassidy tells what the department is doing in this direction.

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

A number of girls from the Southern States will shortly visit Washington as the guests of the Department of Agriculture. They are to be given the trip as a reward for the splendid work in connection with the girls' canning clubs conducted under the auspices of the department.

The Bureau of Plant Industries organized in the canning clubs is supposed to have carried out a definite project in gardening on a tenth acre plot.

The girls have raised tomatoes principally. But frequently they plant string beans, cucumbers, peppers, okra, etc., in certain regions figs are preserved. In others grape juice is made.

When the girls have supplied their families and the local market with their products, they are expected to can the surplus. Peaches, berries and corn are frequently put up side by side in the canning.

Miss Bessie Shirley, a Virginia girl who had the best record last year of all the States, obtained 9,368 pounds of tomatoes in one season from her tomacre plot. Many girls make a profit of over $100. A young Mississippi girl made enough to start a course in the State normal school. She is working her way through on the profits from her pieced of ground.

She has had such success, she is now recognized as a canning expert and has formed a class in the school who will can tomatoes to help pay their expenses.

Purpose of Work.

The result of all this has not been restricted to the individual records made. Thousands of homes have had home-grown canned vegetables throughout the Winter months when they otherwise would have been without them.

Closely allied to the girls' clubs are the boys' corn clubs. And now comes the boys' Pig Club. It is being organized in the South to increase the supply of pork and to encourage the good breeding of hogs.

The department issued the following statement in part: "It is the purpose of the department to have every member of the club encourage not only an increased production of the swine family, but a better breed of pig than is being raised at present.

"It is a serious purpose the officials of the department are engaged in—one that is aimed at the high cost of living.

"The production of pork is not keeping pace with the increased population, and something must be done to harmonize these two elements. If each member of the club will see to it that one more pig and a better pig is produced each year, then a long step will have been taken in meeting the ever-growing chasm between pork production and increased population."

Arsenic in Candy.

The boys' visits to Washington have aroused much general interest. Besides receiving diplomas from the secretary of Agriculture they have shaken hands with the President and been shown the sights. The girls are expected to receive similar attention during their visit.

The girls' main interest will be the liberal education the experience will give them. But from a broader standpoint the increased interest throughout the States will more than compensate for the outlay made.

The government seized some candy recently going into Illinois which was loaded with arsenic. The stuff was labelled "fairy fudge." Analysis showed that there was sixteen-hundredths per cent. resinous coating, and that this coating contained seven parts per million of arsenic.

The sellers of the poisonous stuff, the Dan Glick Company of Cleveland, O., were fined $225 and costs.

HUNT MELLEN WITH SUMMONS IN MORSE SUIT

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Process servers in the suit brought in New Jersey by Jennie B. Morse, sister of Charles W. Morse, the former banker, against the Metropolitan Steamship Company and the Pacific Navigation Company, are still seeking Charles S. Mellen, former president of the New Haven Road, as a witness.

When the case was called, they reported they had been unable to find him. The hearing went over until October 31.

The plaintiff asks for the appointment of a receiver for the Metropolitan Company and that its lease of the steamships Harvard and Yale, formerly in operation between New York and Boston, to the Pacific Navigation Company, be annulled on the ground that it is unprofitable. The latter company purchased the boats for service along the Pacific Coast.

Charles W. Morse was present with the attorneys for his sister and prompted them in their examination of witnesses. They endeavored to show that the New Haven Road was the real purchaser of the Metropolitan Steamship Company and was responsible for the transfer of the steamships to the Pacific Coast, although the title ultimately vested with the Assets Realization Company.

Steel Heads Meet in Chicago Today

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—Members and heads of subsidiary companies of the United States Steel Corporation attended today the meeting of the American Iron and Steel Institute, composed of manufacturers in and outside of the steel corporation.

Headed by Elbert H. Gary, the steel corporation chiefs have to inspect the works at Gary, Ind.

James T. McCleary, secretary of the institute, declined to comment on published reports that general reduction in steel output was contemplated and said he had no information as to how many employes had been laid off at the various plants.

Mrs. Corey One of Royal Auto Party

Financier's Wife Journeys with Friends Where Whim Calls.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Mrs. William E. Corey, the beautiful wife of the New York financier, is a member of a charming automobile party which is making its way leisurely from Paris to Vienna.

In the party are the Princess de Broglie, the Marquise de Vas Concellos, the Infanta Luis Ferdinand of Spain and the Duchess de la Rochefoucauld.

The chase at Chaumont is said to be the final goal of the group of distinguished feminine "explorers."

The Princess de Broglie has a chateau at Chaumont. But there is a vivacious vagueness about the unique group, and they are bound whither whim calls them. In her letters to New York friends, Mrs. Corey says she will be home in December.

Want to Help a Young Man, Girls?

Prospective Butcher, Once Miner, Seeks Boston Bride.

If there is a young girl, or even a young widow, in all of Boston who is lonely and really wants to aid a good looking young man and assist him in business, she should read this story.

Charles M. Cook of Garrett, Ind., asked the AMERICAN to find him a wife. He says:

"I am twenty-nine, good-looking, weigh 158 pounds. I lost $3,700 in mining and want to go back to the butcher business. I want to marry some young girl or widow of means who will help me. I will make over the business to her. I don't want triflers but will marry the first woman who proposes."

Catharrhal Trouble Ended--Use Hyomei

You Breathe It—No Stomach Dosing—Clears Stopped-Up Head.

Use nature's remedy for catarrh and troubles of the breathing organs, a treatment that is harmless yet quick and effective.

It is the healing oils and balsams of Hyomei which you breathe through a small pocket inhaler. This medicated air reaches the most remote air cells in the nose, throat and lungs, killing the catarrhal germs, and restoring health to the diseased mucous membrance.

In using Hyomei you are treating your catarrhal troubles with the natural remedy, for it gives a curative air bath to the nose, throat and bronchial organs. It has a powerful healing and antiseptic effect similar to the air in the mountains where the forests give off the fragrant and healing balsams.

Hyomei has benefited so many sufferers of the worst cases of catarrh, with offensive breath, raising of mucus, frequent sneezing, droppings in the throat and spasmodic coughing that it is sold under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it does not do all that is claimed for it. A complete Hyomei Outfit, containing inhaler and bottle of liquid, sells for only $1.00. Extra bottles of liquid, if later needed, 50 cents. Druggists everywhere sell Hyomei.

DR. HUTCHINSON WARNS OF PERIL FROM MERCURY

By DR. WOODS HUTCHINSON.
Most noted writer on medical subjects in America.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 24.—Bichloride of mercury is known, speaking generally, as a common household antiseptic. But it should not be, because it is an infernally dangerous, and people are so infernally careless. I say that the people are careless. They are—sometimes criminally so. They wake up at night with a pain and seek the medicine chest for relief. There is no light at hand. But one feels quite sure that he can lay his hand on just what he wants. You would not go to the icebox like that, would you?

But people do it every day.

It is just plain, ordinary carelessness.

A small dose of bichloride of mercury really seems more fatal than a large one. Take the recent examples of accidental poisoning of that banker in Atlanta and the merchant in New York.

The stomach will not absorb a large, strong solution of the drug—that is, at once—because its immediate effect is to char the walls and paralyze the absorbing qualities of the lining of the stomach.

If the mistake is discovered at once, there is a fair chance for life in the antidotes. They are white of eggs, given as rapidly as the patient will allow and all. Any kind of oil will do, sweet oil preferred. But do not hesitate to use olive oil. Only hurry, hurry.

There should be a medicine chest that, when you open it, will light up automatically.

Boston Elks Honor Exalted Ruler Leach

Is Presented Chest of Silver at Banquet.

Grand Exalted Ruler Edward Leach of New York was greeted last night by Governor Foss, Lieutenant-Governor Walsh, Mayor Fitzgerald, Congressman Murray and more than 300 members of Boston Lodge of Elks at a banquet at the Elks' Home. He was presented with a chest of silver containing 287 pieces.

Street Commissioner James A. Gallivan, a boyhood chum of Mr. Leach at the Elliot School, North End, was toastmaster. The presentation was made by Thomas H. Dowd, past exalted ruler of Boston Lodge.

Judge Michael J. Murray spoke on the recall of judges, and said it is not needed in this State.

Nitrogen Gas for 'White Plague' Cure

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—New hope for victims of the white plague is offered by Dr. John B. Murphy, who presented a remedy for tuberculosis before a gathering of physicians here. Dr. Murphy called his method "Pneumothorax," and explained that it meant the injection of nitrogen gas into the pleural cavity, thereby contracting one of the lungs, causing the infection to be drained or squeezed away.

Alfonso Ready to Fight for Republic

MADRID, Oct. 24.—Senor Azcarate, leader of the republican minority in the Chamber of Deputies, reminded the Reformists at a banquet here of King Alfonso's words to him at a recent meeting.

"My love of Spain is such that if a republic is proclaimed I shall be among the first to offer it my sword."

'SHOOT TO KILL,' ORDER IN HUNT FOR BANDIT

was snatched in bandages, and seemed dazed. He was brought to court in an auto, with Chief Ryan of Watertown and Patrolman Clifford.

Was Walking Arsenal.

The sensational battle between the lone boy and the half a dozen policemen and citizens who finally captured him, reads like a chapter out of a dime novel.

When Dubois was finally wounded and surrendered, he had 200 cartridges and two revolvers still in his possession, and had evidently prepared for a fight to the death.

Dubois' capture came about through the courage of a woman. She was Mrs. Bertha Norman, wife of Thomas W. Norman of No. 33 Charlesbank road, Newton. Shots were ordered in some bushes near her yard. Harry Hall, proprietor of a Watertown garage, was helping the pursuit.

Hall located Dubois in the bushes just as the boy was taking careful aim at one of the police officers who was creeping toward him. Hall had no weapon, however. Just then Mrs. Norman appeared with a shotgun and a handful of shells. She saw Hall's signal, ran to him and handed him the weapon. Hall quickly threw two shells into the barrels, fired, and the boy dropped flat, crying out a surrender.

Dubois and the other boy appeared in the Bleachery depot and uttered about in a manner that attracted the attention of Station Agent Fred J. Mason. He had occasion to leave the station, but locked the ticket office and left the men studying a timetable. When he returned he found one crawling through the ticket window while the other was inside the office.

Bandits Separated.

Both men ran from the depot across the Metz aviation field nearby. The station agent telephoned the Waltham police and officers were sent toward Newton, while the police of surrounding towns were notified. The young bandits separated, one running back toward the centre of Waltham, while Dubois kept on toward the Charles river. When he reached the dam at Bemis he stole a boat and rowed toward Watertown.

Patrolman John J. Clifford ran up California street to the bathhouse and saw the boat coming down river. He hurried onto a point of land at the end of the Watertown dam and ordered Dubois to come ashore. The latter replied with an oath and then, at the edge of the dam was reached, jumped from his boat, climbed it over the dam, waded after it and guided the craft through fifty yards of rapids and work below the dam. He then climbed into it again and resumed the oars.

Opened Fire on Officer.

The officer ran to Hall's garage and requested the proprietor to take him along the river bank in an automobile. By this time Dubois had taken two revolvers from his pockets and loaded every chamber. When Clifford and Hall, in the automobile, were abreast of the boat the patrolman ran to the river bank, threw open his coat so as to show his police badge and ordered Dubois to surrender.

The latter replied by firing a shot at Clifford. He then drove back to the station house for a revolver and some ammunition. On the way he encountered Patrolman John Cahalane of the Metropolitan Park police, whose beat takes in the boulevard. The two men procured a police boat and started after Dubois.

As the officers drew near in their boat Dubois commenced a fusilade. His aim was poor, although both Clifford and Cahalane heard bullets whistle by.

Dubois landed on the Newton shore, near the foot of Russell road, and ran through a field to Charlesbank road.

Hall saw the fleeing bandit run through Bemis's terrace and hide in some shrubbery in the yard of Patrolman John McNeil of the Newton department. Mrs. McNeil saw the man and awoke her husband, but before he reached the yard Dubois had vaulted a fence which borders the New York Central tracks and had concealed himself between some dense shrubbery and a high board fence at the opposite side of the tracks.

He left this place of concealment and ran to the rear of the house of George F. Sanborn at No. 421 Oakleigh road, Newton.

Among those who had joined in the chase were Martin Moran of Williams street, Newton, and James Blue, whose home is on Charlesbank road, close to the spot where Dubois crossed the railroad tracks. Dubois threatened them with his revolvers, and ran back to hide in the shrubbery near the railroad fence.

Clifford and Cahalane fired in his direction and one shot grazed Dubois' neck. He suddenly sprang to his feet, but dropped into the bushes. Then Cahalane clubbed onto the fence and edged along it, looking for his quarry.

LADY CONSTANCE, recovering from her collapse, due, it is said, to clashes with Gertrude Hoffman and Mme. Polaire.

SPRINGFIELD, Oct. 24.—Lady Constance Stewart-Richardson, according to her physician, was improved today, following her nervous collapse at the theatre where she is playing with Gertrude Hoffman and Mme. Polaire. Lady Constance's collapse is the result, it is said, of clashes with the other stars, having their inception in Boston.

Lady Constance, after her first collapse, insisted on appearing in her act. As she finished, she dropped in the wings.

BELLIS BREAKS DOWN; TESTIMONY HITS VERA

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 24.—Mendel Beilis, whose existence seemed to have been forgotten by the court which is trying him for "ritual murder," drew attention to himself by suddenly collapsing and dissolving in tears during the testimony of the student, Lukharin, who assisted Brashkovsky and Krassovsky.

Beilis' sobs, as he buried his head in his hands, resounded through the court, and the sitting was suspended until he recovered. Probably the collapse was the result of the long strain and the trying ordeal of listening to evidence which practically ignored the prisoner.

The fact that Beilis' name was not mentioned throughout the whole day's proceedings is inscribed in the court records on the suggestion of the counsel for the defence, the president of the court agreeing. Catherine Diakonoff continued her important testimony, which throws strong suspicion on Vera Cheberyak. She identified from photographs produced in court Vera's mysterious male friends, Rodinsky, Shigaevsky and Latchieff.

Catherine said a few months after the murder she saw little Ludmilla Cheberyak wearing a boy's shoes. She asked Vera if they were Yushinsky's. Vera replied, "You are crazy."

Confronted by Catherine in court, Vera declared the shoes were owned by her son Eugene. She also denied Catherine had visited her on several dates about the time of the murder, when, as Catherine had testified, she noticed various suspicious things. Catherine however, maintained her statements.

Catherine identified the pieces of perforated paper found near the fatal cave as those used in a game played at Vera's home at a party which the witness had attended when the members of Vera's gang also were present.

She also identified fragments of a pillow case found near the cave as belonging to Vera.

USE OF BLOOD NOT IN JEWISH RITUAL, SAY RABBIS

In a statement just issued by Rabbi Bernard L. Levinthal, president of the Union Orthodox Rabbis of the United States and Canada, in the name of all the orthodox rabbis of the country, he declared that there is not and has never been a Jewish ritual which prescribes the use of the blood of any human being. The statement reads as follows:

On behalf of the 150 members of the Union of Orthodox Rabbis of the United States and Canada, representing the greater portion of the observant Jews in America, I solemnly affirm that there is not, and never has been, a Jewish ritual prescribing the use of the blood of any human being.

Were there such a ritual, or were such a procedure even tolerated, there would surely be some reference to it in the great mass of literature that treats of every detail of Jewish ritualistic observance and domestic life. Never has a passage from these sources been cited to show that such a prescription exists.

As a result of this incontroverttible fact the assertion is now often made that, while the traditional conception the alleged blood rite do not obtain among the Jews as a whole they are, nevertheless, accepted by one or several sects. This is absolutely false. There never was a Jewish sect that required or employed blood for ritualistic purposes.

Anti-Jewish prejudice is the real basis for this dreadful accusation against the Jewish people. It is manifest to every thinking individual that the revival of the charge against the Jewish people by Russia is deliberate, malicious and without the semblance of truth.

Every member of our organization has taken a solemn oath in which he has sworn that he has never heard among the Jews of the practice of killing human beings or using blood, and that he believes that this charge, so often brought against the Jews in the middle ages, and now revived by Russia, is a falsehood. These oaths have been forwarded to the counsel for the defence of Mendell Beilis, the Jew accused by the Russian government of killing a Christian boy for ritualistic purposes.

In response to the order made by the executive board, every member of the Union of Orthodox Rabbis decided and denounced the blood accusation from his pulpit on last Yom Kippur (Day of Atonement), which is the most sacred day of the Jewish calendar.

By JULIUS ROSENBLUM,
Ex-President of the Hebrew Progressive Lodge.

I cannot tell if Beilis is guilty of murder or not. But I am certain as that I am alive, that he did not kill the little Christian lad to use his blood for religious purposes, nor did any other Jew in his group. Jews ever perpetrate such an abhorrent crime, although throughout the centuries many charges have been made that such crimes have been committed for ritualistic purposes.

No court of law in the world has been able to establish the fact that ritual murder has ever been practiced by the Jews. The reason is not hard to find. The Jews, as a people, are not given to murderous offences, and the Jewish religion holds blood in such abhorrence as a food, or an element of food, that even to this day the most observant Jews endeavor to remove all blood from animal food before eating it. What is true of animal blood is infinitely more true human blood; and it is needless to say that only perverted minds could believe that it could be employed as an element of diet among a people who are responsible for the first pure food laws the world ever knew.

I am very grateful to the AMERICAN for the splendid work it is doing in presenting the exact facts to the public of the oppressed Jewish people of Russia.

By JULIUS MEYER,
Massachusetts Delegate to the Zionist Congress Held Recently in Vienna.

The Beilis case is one of the most disgraceful, most barbarous and shameful matters that could be thought of in our so-called modern civilization of the twentieth century.

To think that such absurdity and falsehood can be thought of at this age to revive a falsehood that has been denounced and disproven, to stir race hatred and to cover their own crimes, and to try to divert the attention of the oppressed masses in Russia against the tyrannical form of government! The reason is so plain Russians may be able to plunder and rob innocent men and women because they are trying to live according to the dictation of their conscience and because they believe in freedom, liberty and justice.

OLD FOLKS FIND CROXONE RELIEVES ALL KIDNEY AND BLADDER MISERIES

Drives Rheumatic Pains Away, Few Doses Relieve Backache and Bladder Disorders.

Sleep disturbing bladder weaknesses, backache, rheumatism and the many other kindred ailments which so commonly come with declining years, need no longer be a source of dread and misery to those who are past the middle age of life.

Croxone relieves all such disorders because it reaches the very cause of the trouble. It soaks right into the kidneys, through the walls and linings; cleans out the little filtering glands and cells, and gives the kidneys new strength to do their work properly. It neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous uric acid substances that lodge in the joints and muscles, causing rheumatism; and makes the kidneys filter and sift out the poisonous waste matter from the blood and drive it out of the system.

It matters not how old you are or how long you have suffered, Croxone is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it without results. There is nothing else like it. It starts to work immediately and more than a few doses are seldom required to relieve even the most chronic, obstinate case.

An original package costs but a trifle and all druggists are authorized to return the purchase price if Croxone should fail in a single case.

Mrs. Pankhurst Poses for Films

Militant Leader Defends Eugenic Article and Starts for Cleveland.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—After having posed for a moving picture sketch, entitled, "What 8,000,000 Women Want," Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst today left for Cleveland, where she lectures tomorrow.

Before leaving Mrs. Pankhurst again defended the articles relating to eugenics in "The Suffragette," a publication brought here from England, and could see no reason why the sale of the paper should be stopped.

"We have always looked on America as the leader in the movement to enlighten women as to dangers confronting them," she said. "John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is one of the leaders in that movement and he also is doing much. I am told, to protect girls from heartless schemers."

Big Run of Mackerel.

There is an unusual run of mackerel in the waters adjacent to Boston at present. Nine schooners discharged 172,000 fresh mackerel at T Wharf today, an unprecedented catch for late October.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to flush Kidneys and neutralize irritating acids.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in holding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urine. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

MRS. CHARLES W. FAIRBANKS DIED TODAY

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 24.—Mrs. Charles Warren Fairbanks, wife of the former Vice-President of the United States, died here today.

Mrs. Fairbanks was considered one of the most charming women in American public life. Before her marriage she was Cornelia Cole, daughter of Judge P. B. Cole. She was graduated from Ohio Wesleyan University in 1872, and two years later married Mr. Fairbanks. She worked untiringly to advance her husband, who after their marriage was admitted to the Ohio bar and began practicing law in Indianapolis.

As Fairbanks advanced in politics his wife interested herself in women's clubs. From 1901 to 1905 she was president-general of the Daughters of the American Revolution; was active in the National Federation of Woman's Clubs and one of the promoters of the "Junior Republic." In 1909 and 1910 Mr. and Mrs. Fairbanks made a tour of the world.

After the trip she expressed her disapproval of the marriage of American girls and titled foreigners, declaring, "An American girl who marries a foreigner, I think, has retrograded. Our men in their dealings with women are more honorable and American women are more intellectual."

$10,000 Verdict for 'L' Switchman

Antonio Cori, employed as a switchman by the "L," was awarded $10,000 against the "L" in the Suffolk County Court today for the loss of a leg on July 5, 1912. He attempted to board a car at Eliot square, near Highland street, Roxbury, when the car started suddenly. He was thrown to the ground and the wheels passed over one of his legs. He sued for $25,000.

Jury Disagrees in Gray Hair Suit

A jury was unable to agree after eight hours of deliberation in the breach of promise suit for $2,000 of Miss Letteria Sacco of No. 25 Billerica street against Agostino D'Arrigo of No. 5 Genesee street before Judge Morton. D'Arrigo's defence was that she found fault with him because he had gray hair and was unwilling to pay her mother $5 a week.

Ohio Safe Blowers Secure $15,000

CHICAGO JUNCTION, O., Oct. 24.—Robbers blew the safe of the postoffice at Attica, O., seven miles west of here early today, demolishing the two-story brick building and securing $16,000.

How Can Anyone Digest Flavodiscus?

Trichoiana Personatum, Too, Must Require Some Chewing.

"Ah, my dear sir," said a member of the Mycological* Club to a fellow member, as they dined in the Cafe Jacot, "let me help you to a little more of the Trichoiana Personatum with Flavodiscus sauce."

"No, thank you, professor, but I WOULD like a little of that excellent fragillineus with bourbous stramentaus."

And so it went all through the banquet of the mushroom loving club. Many of the guests, rather than betray their ignorance of the sciences, were forced to point to the things they wanted on the menu, rather than attempt to call them familiarly by name.

The flavodiscus was particularly relished by the members, one of the clubmen having secured a large quantity. Everyone knows what the flavodiscus is, so there is no need for a tired reporter to explain.

*Mycological—Adj. from noun Mycology, the branch of botany, dealing with fungi.

Fungi—one of a group of thallophytic* plants.

A SOUR STOMACH GAS, INDIGESTION

"Pape's Diapepsin" ends all Stomach distress in five minutes—Time it!

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach headache, you can get blessed relief in five minutes.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will understand why dyspeptic troubles of all kinds must go, and why they relieve sour, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. "Pape's Diapepsin" is harmless; tastes like candy, though each dose will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for billousness or constipation.

This city will have many "Pape's Diapepsin" cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be enthusiastic about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever take it for indigestion, gases, heartburn, sourness, dyspepsia, or any stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and rid yourself of stomach trouble and indigestion in five minutes.

Duck Hunter Is Shot by Comrade

Henry Farrell of Hull, son of Mrs. Norah Farrell, is at the Massachusetts General Hospital with a heavy charge of birdshot in his leg and body. He, with Louis Farrell and Elliott Mitchell, were out in a boat duck hunting, when a gun accidentally discharged, poured its charge into him at short range.

Panama Experts for African Mines

Gorgas, Noble and Darling to Improve Sanitation.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Oct. 24.—Colonel George Washington Gorgas, who made the Panama Canal zone fit to live in, Major Robeki Noble, and Dr. S. T. Darling of this city, a member of the sanitation corp at Panama, will leave shortly for Johannesburg, South Africa, to investigate and improve the sanitary condition there for the consolidated Mines of the Rand. Their work will be an endeavor to perfect sanitary conditions throughout the whole district owned or controlled by the Consolidated Mines.

Says Police Are Persecuting Him

Michael F. Mulligan, a saloon keeper with a place of business at A and Fourth streets, South Boston, today declared that the police of the Broadway station are persecuting him. He made this declaration after Patrick Feeney, who was taken from Mulligan's saloon on a charge of drunkenness, had been fined $5. Feeney, the father of "Joe" Egan, the pugilist, was represented by Attorney Obert Skinner and appeared. Skinner said his client was not drunk. He said that two patrolmen kept tabs on Feeney as he visited several saloons and did not get a seat him until he had paid for a glass of beer in Mulligan's place.

ECZEMA ON HEAD, ARMS AND FACE

Spread and Itched. Raw Surface When Scratched. On Body Would Scale Off. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured in Three Months.

Howland, Maine.—"My little daughter aged thirteen years was troubled with eczema on the head, arms and face. Some of the sores on the head were as large as a penny and one on the inside of the thigh was as large as a quarter of a dollar and that one lasted over a year. The eczema came out like a little red pimple and spread and would itch and when scratched off would be a raw surface and bleed. Then a dirty scaly scab would grow and on the head was the thickness of a thin piece of paste-board, while on the body it would scale off.

"She had this trouble nearly two years when I saw the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment in the paper and sent for some and the very first application proved its worth. I used the Cuticura Soap with as hot water as could be borne and the Cuticura Ointment after the surface had dried. I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment about three months before she was cured." (Signed) Mrs. J. A. Eldredge, Nov. 7, 1912.

Not only are Cuticura Soap and Ointment most valuable in the treatment of eczema and other distressing eruptions of skin and scalp, but they are also most effective in the treatment of pimples, blackheads, red, rough skins, itching, scaly scalps, dandruff, dry, thin and falling hair, chapped hands and shapeless nails. Sold by druggists and dealers throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

3 PLATFORMS INDORSE HIM, DECLARES FOSS

The fifth of the series of political articles by Governor Eugene N. Foss, being published in the AMERICAN, is as follows:

ALL THREE PARTY PLATFORMS INDORSE GOVERNOR FOSS.

The three machine platforms in this State Election (Democratic, Republican, Progressive) are almost entirely borrowed from the policies of Governor Foss. Prove it by reading for yourself the following "deadly parallels." But no one of these three platforms includes ALL the important popular issues which Governor Foss has raised. They all three fall behind the Governor. Isn't it better to elect the man you KNOW will carry on all this good work? Why experiment?

ATTENTION: REPUBLICANS!

REPUBLICAN PLATFORM INDORSES GOVERNOR FOSS	WHERE GOVERNOR FOSS STANDS
"We insist that the railroads be compelled to dispose of any properties shown to be illegally held, and we are opposed to their absorbing competitive public utilities."	Governor Foss has not only denounced these abuses of railway monopoly in speeches and in messages to the Legislature, but has vetoed every bill which would aid the public to the transportation monopoly. Let the voter note that in spite of the platform of the Republican machine, these bills have been overridden by Republican allies of that machine in the Legislature. These planks absolutely indorse the position of Governor Foss. The voter who agrees with it should vote for him.
"We urge the improvement of the waterways and harbors of the State in connection with the Federal Government, to the end that transportation charges may be lowered and the industries of Massachusetts encouraged and developed."	This plank quotes Governor Foss' messages to the Legislature, and every word of it indorses his stand and his achievements.
"We favor better laws regulating the State subsidizing for needy and worthy students in our technical schools and colleges, under supervision of the State Board of Education."	Governor Foss made this demand officially upon the Legislature of 1912 and secured a law giving such free scholarships. The Republican platform indorses not only the things the Governor is working for, but also the things he has done!
"We pledge ourselves to support measures of prison reform. We believe that the jails now controlled by the counties should be controlled and supported by the State."	See Governor Foss's message to the Legislature demanding the same things. He has already succeeded in a program of prison reform!
"We favor better laws regulating housing and city planning; increased attractiveness of our rural and suburban communities by means of improved postal, financial, transportation and highway facilities, and urge also better industrial and agricultural education."	"These messages are taken from Governor Foss's record.
"We favor the establishment of a permanent non-partisan tariff commission."	Quoted from Governor Foss' special message to the Legislature on April 3, 1913.
"We urge the submission of a Constitutional amendment to the people which will give the Legislature power to effect taxation reforms."	Governor Foss has secured one important taxation amendment to the State Constitution and advocates further measures.

Vote for the man who succeeds in his efforts for the people.

Through the courtesy of the AMERICAN I have already shown how largely the Progressive party platform is copied from the records of my three administrations.

I have quoted above, from four of the seven sections of the Republican platform as printed in the papers of October 4.

At a later date I shall show how much of the Democratic platform also is copied from my own record.

Tufts Men Refuse to Let Girls Vote

But Jackson College Girls Will Have Part in Class Day.

While Tufts College seniors have decided to allow Jackson College girls to join them in the celebration of Class Day and Commencement, they have made a strict ruling in several instances, regarding "women's suffrage" at the institution.

They refuse to allow them to vote in the election at which honorary parts for Class Day will be distributed. The offices, class poet and the writer of the words of the class ode, are assigned to the Jackson girls, and they are also allowed to choose two members of the Class Day committee of seven.

Mrs. Becker on List of Teacher-Mothers

New York School Head Names 15 Women Absent for Motherhood.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Fifteen women, among them Mrs. Helen Becker, wife of Lieutenant Becker, were named by Superintendent of Schools Maxwell in a report made on teachers who have been absent since January 1 to become mothers. Mrs. Becker and Mrs. Katherine C. Ingall are the only two of the fifteen who are now teaching in the schools.

Ten of those on the motherhood roll have already resigned; two others have been suspended, and one is still absent without any action having been taken in her case.

WHO'S WHO IN N. E. TO REMAIN IN THE DARK

The courts will not rule on "Who's Who in New England," owing to the fact that Miss Lucinda M. P. Brackett of Brookline has settled for $75 the suit brought against her by the Lewis Historical Publishing Company to recover $95 for the family memorial volumes she subscribed for.

The work was called "New England Families, Genealogical and Historical," She agreed to pay $135 for the set, and gave the company a check for that amount. But she stopped payment on the check when she received and examined the books. She found that the volume contained no mention of Charles William Eliot, the Lowells, Longfellows, Emersons or Hoars.

So she put interrogatories to the plaintiff company as to "Who's Who in New England." In answering the company did not directly settle the social question involved, but simply stated that the families she missed from the work she bought had been included in other similar works published by the plaintiff.

If It's Correct, It's at Morse's

Why Are Morse-Made Clothes Lower Priced?

1st. Because—instead of being merely the assemblers of the products of other manufacturers—we produce our own clothes in our own plant.

2nd. Because our cost of production is less than that of any other manufacturer in the entire country.

Low Rent The rent of our six-floor building is less than we would have to pay for one floor (same size as our street floor) in the heart of the retail shopping district.

Low "Overhead" Expense The fact that we manufacture wholesale and retail Morse-Made Clothing under this one roof reduces our overhead expense to a minimum. It means economy in every detail connected with the manufacture and distribution of our clothing.

Low Cost of Raw Materials Producing clothes on such a large scale—we make over 3,000 garments per week—we are able to procure our woolens, trimmings, etc., at bottom prices, direct from the mills.

Greater Efficiency The concentration of every part of our business in this building secures the highest possible efficiency, because every step in the process of making and selling Morse-Made Clothing is under our direct supervision.

Better Quality It results also in a degree of quality, as revealed in the style, fit and wear of Morse-Made Clothing, that is not surpassed.

Better Values It enables us to state, without any qualifications, that Morse-Made Clothes, at the prices we place on them, are absolutely unequalled values. It should mean a lot to you to know that Morse-Made Clothes are sold by 300 leading retailers of New England and in the principal cities clear to the Pacific coast.

We have given you these details because, while anyone can claim to offer lowest prices and best values, we prefer to prove it. If these facts have failed to convince you, and your mind is open to conviction, come to our store and see the clothes. They will make good our reasons

WHY CALDWELL WOULDN'T WED MODERN 'VENUS'

Admitting that he had promised to marry Miss Helga Marie Mason of No. 100 Longwood avenue, the twenty-year-old girl who is said to be a "perfect modern Venus," George H. Caldwell, the seventy-five-year-old bridegroom declared that he broke the engagement for "good and sufficient reasons."

Caldwell married Miss Maude A. Taylor, eighteen, of Dorchester, a few weeks ago, and while on his honeymoon in New York Miss Mason filed her $75,000 breach of promise suit against him.

Suffragists Tell Why Vote Is Needed

The Cambridge Political Equality Association at the meeting with Mrs. Charles Peabody, at No. 197 Brattle street, listened to Mrs. Thomas Pelham Curtis and Mrs. Maude Wood Park. Mrs. Curtis dwelt on the housewife's need of the ballot, while Mrs. Park told how it could be used for the betterment of the world in general.

HUERTA HURLS DOWN GAUNTLET TO WILSON

a long time before Mexico will have any other kind of government. It will require years before conditions reach the point where millions may go to the polls, cast an intelligent ballot and then abide peacefully by the result.

Washington can give no sufficient answer to the people of the United States nor to the people of Europe, if through its conduct, a consequence so repugnant to the universal sense of justice is brought about.

If a crisis is forced on Mexico, no more blockading of the ports of Mexico will be of any value for the collection of the interest and principal of anybody's debts. As the United States is, by its proximity, the only country which can enforce the will of a foreign power on Mexico, by troops, the result would in the long run mean that the people of the United States would be involved in a conflict which would cost them, in addition to at least 250,000 lives, more money than the entire foreign investment in Mexico.

There can be no sufficient reason given for permitting such a calamity to occur.

Mexico can handle her own affairs best and Mexicans best know how to do it.

Seize American Liner.

Adding to the long list of his studied defiances of the American government, Huerta has seized the Ward liner Morro Castle, an American liner, on which Mrs. John Lind, wife of the American envoy to Mexico is a passenger, and has thrown its commander, Captain Huff, into jail at Vera Cruz.

Anti-American feeling has been fanned to fever heat by the preparations which the American Consul at Vera Cruz has made to protect General Felix Diaz, whom Huerta is planning to arrest and deport in order to make him ineligible at the presidential election Sunday. The law provides that a candidate, to be eligible for the presidency, must be in Mexico on the day of balloting.

Diaz Appeals to Consul.

Diaz has appealed to the United States for protection from agents of General Huerta and this has been promised him by Consul Canada.

Diaz's appeal was made to Consul Canada when the Mexican presidential candidate learned that he was to be arrested and shipped out of the country in order to prevent his being a candidate in Sunday's election.

The government today explained the arrest of the entire personal staff of General Huerta last night on the ground that a letter signed by Felix Diaz had been found telling the officers in the National Palace to be ready for a coup d'etat within twenty-four hours if Diaz is not elected President Sunday.

The government's explanation of the detention of the Morro Castle is that her captain was wanted to testify in a case of long standing. Government officials declared that the order for the appearance of Captain Huff in court was issued a week ago but it is significant that the order was not served until the Morro Castle was ready to sail for Havana.

The real reason for the holdup of the vessel, however, is believed to be the fact that eight of the thirteen members of the Vera Cruz State Legislature had taken passage on the ship for Havana because of threats made against them for opposing Huerta's policies. Their flight is thought to have been the reason why the port authorities refused to give Captain Huff his clearance papers.

To Demand Diaz Withdraw.

An emissary believed to have been direct from General Huerta left here today to demand that Felix Diaz withdraw from the presidential contest Sunday.

This development was believed to be the result of the action of certain of Diaz friends at Vera Cruz, who have been holding a special train in readiness for him so that he could be in the capital Sunday when the balloting takes place.

Among those opposed to Huerta and his dictatorial policies a statement which he made yesterday to the assembled diplomats declaring his refusal to accept the presidency if elected was regarded as a mere mask to keep his real intention in the dark.

For some mysterious reason Huerta caused it to be rumored that the government had switched its favor from Francisco Gamboa, the strong Catholic candidate for President, to David de la Fuente, "because Fuente is acceptable to the Carranzists."

SHARP PROTEST TO BE MADE BY U. S. OVER SEIZURE OF STEAMER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—Government wheels turned rapidly today to provide protection for Americans in Mexico. Secretary of State Bryan cabled Consul Canada at Vera Cruz, asking for immediate details concerning the detention at Vera Cruz by a Mexican gunboat of the Ward line steamer Morro Castle, on which Mrs. John Lind, wife of the President's special envoy in Mexico, is a passenger.

It is expected that the Morro Castle incident will be made the basis of a sharp note to the Mexican government as soon as President Wilson has had an opportunity to review the facts. None of the administration officials would discuss the incident today pending a detailed report from Envoy Lind.

Upon receipt of information today that several of General Felix Diaz' aides have been arrested and are imprisoned at Vera Cruz by the military authorities Secretary Bryan instructed Charge O'Shaughnessy at Mexico City to endeavor to obtain a fair trial for the prisoners.

Secretary Bryan returned to Washington from New Jersey early in the day.

The President will be in Philadelphia tomorrow and leaves that night for Mobile Ala. He will not return to Washington until Tuesday or Wednesday.

REBEL ATTACK UPON MONTEREY RAGING AS TELEGRAPH WAS CUT

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 24.—The rebel attack on the city of Monterey began Wednesday night and was raging in the outskirts of the city at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, at which time telegraphic communication was interrupted.

At that hour the rebel force had occupied a railroad yard about a mile from the city. They had several cannon with which they bombarded the Federal fortifications, and they were also in possession of a machine gun.

The attack on the city was made from all sides, and the fighting was severe. When the rebels occupied the yards of the National Railway they burned many of the cars standing there.

Wellesley Seniors Honor Professor

The senior class at Wellesley College has elected Miss Martha Hale Shackford of the English literature department as its honorary member for the academic year. Miss Shackford took her A. B. degree at the college in 1898, since then she has studied in Florence and Rome. In 1901 she took her Ph. D. at Yale. She is associate professor in the department.

Ferryboat Gives Watchers a Scare

The ferryboat General Hancock stopped in midstream early today while crossing from East Boston to Atlantic avenue and a boat lowered from the ferry gave the impression on the waterfront that someone was overboard. Tugs hurried out but found that they were not needed. A piece of driftwood had fooled the rescuers.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Oct. 24.—The remains of a pet collie, owned by Mrs. N. M. Avenia, leader in society here, were placed in a $200 coffin and buried with due honor.

POLICEWOMEN ILL TREATED, IS CHICAGO CLAIM

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—Reorganization of Chicago's policewomen brigade, with an addition of ten members, is expected as a result of an expose of the present disorganization of the women's work by some of the police captains.

Statements that two women were "traveling beats" at night in an isolated district were made. It was also asserted that two other women had been assigned to the "prairie beat" discipline in an attempt to force their resignations or curtail their usefulness.

That work was being given the policewomen so different from that intended by Mayor Harrison; that they were being incapacitated for useful service, was made known at a meeting of policewomen.

A telephone call for one of the policewomen brought a demand for information from the officer answering:

"If you want a policewoman well see whether or not we'll send one of them."

PLEA WILL NOT AID EILLS, WIFE'S COUNSEL THINKS

John Ellis, the minister-telegrapher who kidnaped his four-year-old daughter Olga last April, has appealed from his cell in a Tokio prison to the Japanese officials not to deliver him to the United States authorities. Ellis said he did not commit perjury, as charged in the extradition proceedings for the child's flight, and that the charge was manufactured so he might be brought back. He said he wanted to become a subject of the Mikado.

Edgar Sherman Hoar, attorney for Mrs. Ellis, who received this information in a cable dispatch from Japan, said that the appeal would have no effect on the case. He declared the fact that Ellis intended to become a citizen of Japan would not affect the case, as international law usually authorizes the return of a prisoner even after he has taken out citizenship papers in another country.

Mr. Hoar also called attention to the fact that District Attorney Clinton of Springfield is making preparations to have the man tried on the charge.

Seek Identity of West End Victim

The police are trying to identify a man who was found dead in a room in the Thorndike house, No. 76 Green street, West end, the gas turned on. An autopsy will be held to determine whether he committed suicide. He registered as Smith. He was thirty years old, five feet seven inches tall, weighed 160 pounds, had dark gray hair mixed with gray and wore a faded dark coat and pants.

DESCRIBE ADMIRAL'S ATTITUDE TOWARD WOMEN WHEN STATIONED AT CHARLESTOWN

McNALLY, THE SMIMMER, DECLARES HE FREQUENTLY SAW EATON INTOXICATED.

The judge stated he did not like to tell to get a witness to pass on Mrs. Eaton's mental condition.

Judge Keiley declared that Mrs. Eaton had once told him:

"I will not allow you or any one else to harm a hair of his (the Admiral's) head."

Judge Keiley recalled former visit the admiral had said to him: "It is of responsibility.

"Good Judge, is the voyage not fine? Worth while."

According to Judge Keiley, Admiral and Mrs. Eaton when in the judge's office would always sit holding hands.

They used to hold hands when riding in the street cars.

They went arm in arm when out walking.

"Unusually Affectionate.

"I have a remarkable wife, he continued, in answer to Judge Keiley's question, "and the admiral had told me.

Judge Keiley said the admiral at times, for his wife was a little out of the ordinary. The judge said that the administration of the Eaton estate has five months stopped after about totaling $3,700. One bill was for $2555 for the purpose of such a ruling, he explained as the Annapolis Club, ever, months ago, the judge declared.

McNally Was First Witness.

Peter McNally of Dorchester was the first witness today. He was examined by Attorney Morse and said he was a naval correspondent and a swimming teacher. He knew Admiral Eaton since he was out on the Navy Yard. Later, when the Eatons lived at How he taught June how to swim.

He testified to seeing the admiral in intoxicated three or four times, on a navy yard and five or six times in the Parker House and other places. On these occasions he would kiss Jennie and talk on subjects not in keeping with the man. He would also laugh inordinately. He often had a queer expression in his eyes.

Posed When Women Were Near.

Witness told of his conversations with the admiral, in which the latter spoke of his officers with women and social duties. He was given to the telling of smutty stories, to ogling women and to "posing" whenever in their company, at the navy yard.

Judge George W. Kelly of Roxbury was called next, told of frequent visits to his office by the Eatons.

Q—What were their relations as man and wife, as you noticed them? A—Very affectionate; a little out of the ordinary I should say on the part of the husband.

Q—In what way? A—Well, whenever they were in my office they were holding hands all the time they were in there. The same thing was true on the street cars. And I have seen them walking places arm in arm.

Q—Did the admiral ever make any talk with you about his wife? A—Yes.

Q—What did he say? A—I have a remarkable wife. Her one obsession is my daughter, June.

Q—When was this conversation? A—I think it was about in April, 1912, in my office.

Q—How did he appear at that time? A—Rather peculiar. He always spoke of her in the third person or as "good Judge."

Q—What other conversation did you have with him? A—Why he said, "Good Judge, is the voyage worth while?" and I told him that the voyage was worth while and I tried to rally him.

Mr. Barker: I object, your honor, to the words "tried to rally him."

Mr. Morse: I submit to your honor's judgment.

Judge Aiken: I'll strike out "tried to rally him."

Q—What else did you say, judge? A—Why, I replied some pucky to him to show him that the voyage was worth while and I tried to rally him.

Q—Did Mrs. Eaton ever say to you that she loved the admiral? A—Yes, sir, and often most emphatically.

Q—When? A—On this occasion I have told. A—She told me that she would not see or anyone else to harm a hair of his head.

Q—You have been appointed administrator of the Eaton estate? A—Yes, sir.

Q—What is the appraisal of the estate? A—It has not been completed, but up to date the admiral's estate is about $1,000 and I have received bills and no less amounting to $1,795.

Q—Did you receive a bill from the Algonquin Club for a wedding reception? A—I have a bill for June's wedding reception, November 3, 1912, amounting to $215.85.

There was half an hour's conference between counsel and judge as to rule to question and paper, offered by Attorney Morse, as evidence of a trust declaration to Judge Kelley by Mrs. Eaton. The first part of the paper was finally admitted. It gives to Judge Kelley, as trustee, all of Mrs. Eaton's interests in the admiral's estate, the income of the trust to be paid to Dorothy Eaton and June Keyes.

Cross-examination by Mr. Barker:

Q—Did Mrs. Eaton make any reference to the admiral's use of whiskey and drugs? A—No, continually mentioned drugs and that what he took gave him the appearance of an insane person.

Q—She talked to you on this subject very frequently, did she not? A—I should say about twenty-five times before the admiral's death.

Q—When Mrs. Eaton made the statement to you that she would not let anyone touch a hair of the admiral's head, was that in connection with a talk about cocaine? A—It was.

Q—Will you state the conversation that led up to this remark? A—Oh, she began to tell me the old story about poison. I told her that I didn't want to hear any more, for I had decided to do one of two things—either to have the admiral arrested or committed to an insane asylum. She became very, very angry. "I will not allow anyone to harm a hair on his head," she said, "for he is harmless except for the use of drugs."

Q—Did you ever make an attempt to save Mrs. Eaton guardian as to her mental condition? A—I did make such an attempt.

Q—You tried to have Dr. Osgood pass on her mental condition? A—Yes.

Q—When was that? A—Two and a half to three years ago.

Q—You came to this idea of having her examined because of her many visits to you in connection with the admiral and poison? A—She had taken a great deal of my time.

Q—Did she always speak of drugs when suffering from the admiral? A—I can't remember a single instance when she spoke of the admiral's relations with women or of his using liquor.

Q—She said she was afraid of being poisoned? A—Yes.

Q—She expressed a fear of his poisoning other members of the family? A—And herself.

Q—Did your talk to Dr. Osgood lead to anything? A—No, sir.

Q—Did Mrs. Eaton ever bring June with her? A—Yes, sir.

Q—What was the nature of the visit —June and anyone else? A—So far as June and I were concerned, we did.

Q—She never came again before the admiral died? A—No, sir.

Q—Where is June now? A—I do not know.

Q—You say you have never been to the Eaton house? A—I have been invited many times, but never found time to go.

Re-direct examination by Mr. Morse:

Q—You were acting as counsel for Mrs. Eaton before the admiral died? A—Yes, sir.

Q—Did you have any talk with the admiral about acting as counsel for Mrs. Eaton? A—Yes, on three occasions. He said he promise that if anything happened to him to look out and care for Jennie.

Q—Did Mrs. Eaton send for you after the admiral's death? A—Yes.

Loaned Mrs. Eaton Some Money.

Q—When you went there, what did you do? A—I lent her $10 in order that she and Dorothy might take the body of the admiral to Lowell to be buried. She had no money.

Q—Did you ever suggest to Dr. Osgood that you would like to have him see Mrs. Eaton? A—I did.

Q—What did you say to him? A—Why, I asked Dr. Osgood to see Mrs. Eaton, as I had heard all sorts of stories about her and about the admiral.

Q—Did Dr. Osgood ever see her? A—No, he never went to see her, nor did he.

Q—Do you know of your own knowledge anything about the admiral's use of drugs or liquor? A—I do not.

Jason W. Brown, a physician, eighty-four years old, was the next witness. He had served in the surgeon's department and hospital during the war and had practiced for years in Boston. He is at present serving a sentence at Rockwarder for illegal operation. He testified that Admiral Eaton came into his office at No. 107 Berkeley street, Boston, the last week in February, 1910. The admiral told witness his stomach was bothering him. He could not keep his food down, that he drank too much, that he used whiskey excessively.

Witness prescribed a bot of dyspepsia tablets. The admiral returned a week later and, according to witness, stated that his real trouble was.

Q—What did you tell him? A—I told him that he couldn't expect to get well in a minute, but that I had some medicine I believed could help him. I said that he must cut down on his stimulants. I told him to take 100 tablets, each of which contained 1-100 grain of bromide of arsenic in compound, and try those. We talked over my army experiences and his experiences in the navy during that visit.

Sold Him 500 Arsenic Tablets.

Q—Did he come back again? A—Yes, a week or ten days later.

Q—What happened? A—I sold him 500 tablets of the same kind at the rate of $7.50 per thousand. He told me that he was satisfied and that previous to that time he had tried about everything.

Q—When the admiral called on you had he told you he was drinking the tablets? A—He said that a child had swallowed one or more of them and shortly after it had taken sick and died and he did not want any more of them.

Q—How many tablets did you sell him altogether? A—I sold him 4,000.

Cautioned About Tablets.

Q—Did you talk to him about the arsenic contained in the tablets? A—Yes, I did, and I noticed that he took the bottle and scraped the labels off them. I objected and told him the labels contained the directions. He said he did not need directions. I asked him why he did not put himself under the care of his family physician. He said he did not want his condition known.

I said that he ought to because the tablets contained arsenic and if he were found dead at any time, somebody would be accused of poisoning him.

Q—What did he say to that? A—He said, "You know, anyway."

Q—Did you say anything to him about arsenic being an accumulative poison?

A—I did, and he told me that if he did not get better and return to his normal condition he did not care how soon he died.

Q—Did he say anything about the use of liquor? A—No, he said that he drank whiskey and champagne all his life.

Q—Did he come to your office at one time with a package? A—He did. He came with a package that contained three or four smaller packages.

Q—What were they? A—One was a bottle containing sixty capsules.

Grain of Arsenic in Each Capsule.

Q—What was in these capsules? A—Each capsule contained one grain of arsenic. I asked him what he was doing with them, and he requested me to keep them until he called for them. I locked them up.

Q—Did he call for them? A—Yes, he came back in about a month or six weeks and took them away with him.

Q—Where were you when you first saw the notice of the death of the admiral? A—I was at the State Farm. I read it in the paper.

A mysterious witness for the defense appeared in Plymouth today. His name was said to be "Dr. Brown," formerly of Boston. It is understood he was brought from the State Hospital at Bridgewater to testify as to medicine he had prescribed for the admiral.

Prisoner Even More Cheerful.

Mrs. Eaton appeared more cheerful today than on any day since the trial began. She seemed more confident of the outcome than ever. She had slept well and eaten a hearty breakfast. What appeared to buoy her up more than anything else was the fact that Admiral Clarke and other naval officers came to Plymouth to testify in her defence of their own volition.

Mystery today still surrounded the defence, no intimation having been given as to whether it will claim the rear admiral unintentionally took an overdose of arsenic from which he died or deliberately took his own life.

It was expected that more high naval officers and intimates of the naval hero would be called to testify in substantiation of the widow's claim that she was justified in the scathing charges she made against him during their residence at the Assinippi home.

That Eaton was using some drug a few years after the Spanish war was claimed in the testimony of Rear Admiral Clark, president of the naval examining board for promotions and retirements, sometimes called "the plucking board." Rear Admiral Clark is famous as "the hero of the Oregon."

Refused Appointment.

Did you talk with Admiral Eaton with reference to his becoming a member of this board?" he was asked by Attorney Morse.

"Yes," said the admiral. "He asked me to approve his application, or to help him to get appointed to the board, but I told him I could not do this. I don't recall all our talk, but the substance was that I couldn't apply for him, and that if he applied I should oppose his appointment because he had become addicted to habits of intemperance and that he had even been intoxicated on shipboard.

"He said it was rather rough on him, because that really was not liquor, but something he had to take, which made it seem he was under the influence of liquor. He told me he knew where the report of his being intoxicated came from.

BREAKS A COLD NEEDS NO HELP

"Pape's Cold Compound" ends severe colds or grippe in few hours.

You can end grippe and break up a severe cold, either in head, chest, body or limbs, by taking a dose of "Pape's Cold Compound" every two hours until three doses are taken.

It promptly opens clogged-up nostrils and air passages in the head, stops nasty discharge or nose running, relieves sick headache, dullness, feverishness, sore throat, sneezing, soreness and stiffness.

Don't stay stuffed-up! Quit blowing and snuffling! Ease your throbbing head—nothing else in the world gives such prompt relief as "Pape's Cold Compound," which costs only 25 cents at any drug store. It acts without assistance, tastes nice, and causes no inconvenience. Be sure you get the genuine.

ANGELA MORGAN TELLS OF MRS. EATON

By ANGELA MORGAN.

Mrs. Eaton's hour of triumph came at last, when an entirely new portrait of her was presented to the court and jury. It was described by the audience to a court room which heretofore has seen her pictured as the alleged wanton.

It was a tremendous day for the remarkable woman, who throughout all the harrowing ordeal of the prosecution has set unperturbable and assured, smiling cheerfully and patiently, even when the most horrible accusations were hurled at her.

Mrs. Eaton, the fiend, the alleged murderess, by this strong and vivid picture of her defense, came place to Mrs. Eaton, the martyr, the loving, devoted, self-sacrificing wife, aleged victim of a husband's alleged drunkenness and vice.

So marked, so wonderful was the new picture and so astonishingly did it spring to life under the verbal brush of Attorney Francis Geogan's address to the jury, that the effect resembled a dissolving view in which all the old lines and colors vanished under the very gaze of the onlookers and a totally different painting stood in place of the former portrait.

It was a big day, a sensational day, in every respect; a day crammed with surprises and revelations.

The first revelation came when Francis J. Geogan, the youthful, quiet and unassuming attorney, who is assistant to William A. Morse as counsel for the prisoner, stepped up to the jury box and in an address which amazed everyone by its force, its reserve power and its colorful appeal, demolished the former picture of Mrs. Eaton and with sure and steady strokes presented in the other to the eyes of the Court.

This calm young man, whose colorless, round face, quiet manner and expressionless eyes had never given a hint of what was coming, made an impression upon the court room which was felt to the uttermost recesses of the place.

The second surprise came when Dr. Fremont Smith, eminent physician and medical authority of Washington, D. C., took the stand for the defence and gave testimony that corroborated almost immediately many of the claims set forth by counsel.

Dr. Smith is the physician who attended the first Mrs. Eaton when she died, and who, so the testimony claims, prescribed for the admiral at the same time, for drunkenness.

The story as told by the noted physician showed Mrs. Eaton as a woman, faithful, devoted, reliable; and drew a picture of her as nurse to the dying wife of the admiral. The story also drew a picture of the admiral so shocking in its details of his alleged diseased and intoxicated condition, that all former representations of him seemed for the time to blur into this one disgraceful portrait.

Dr. Smith said the admiral was in such a state of drunkenness at the time of his first wife's fatal illness, that he did not seem to realize what her illness and death meant. He said the admiral did not seem to care about her death.

Dr. Smith further stated that so great was the admiral's need of medical assistance in his alleged debauched condition, that he, Dr. Smith, voluntarily prescribed for him and attended him after his wife had passed away.

Accused Sits Calm.

The physician, whose whole manner was straightforward, clear, and forceful and whose answers were given in a powerful voice, with the air of an expert and an authority, held his ground with such spirit during the cross-questioning of District Attorney Barker, that the whole court room was roused to a pitch of intense excitement.

This excitement broke into laughter twice as Dr. Smith gave a vigorous retort to the prosecution, and order had to be called.

Throughout all of this proceeding, how did Mrs. Eaton bear herself? What was her manner as the new picture of her was shown to the court?

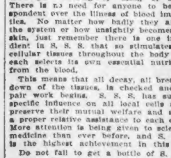
I looked to see if she smiled a quiet, pardonable little smile of relief or triumph, but here again this remarkable woman failed to do the thing expected of her.

No triumph, no exultation, appeared in her manner. She sat calm and cheerful as ever, her face at times leaning on her black-gloved hand; at other times lifted in a gentle smile of attention. She did not show by any act or look that she cared, or that she welcomed the new portrait of herself.

The story of Mrs. Eaton as told by Attorney Geogan traced the woman's life from childhood to the present, and was a masterly, sympathetic drawing of her career.

How To Heal a Stubborn Abscess

A Home Method Sure to Restore Flesh to Natural Health.



Here are some very valuable facts for all who have any blood trouble with external sores.

Do not cover any sore so as to interfere with perspiration and the formation of protective scabs. Keep it clean and bandaged. If it is a stubborn case, flush your blood with S. S. S. This famous blood purifier works wonders. And you can easily give your blood a good thorough cleansing by using S. S. S. There is no need for anyone to be despondent over the illness of blood impurities. No matter how badly they attack the system or how unsightly become the skin, just remember there is one ingredient in S. S. S. that is stimulative to cellular tissues throughout the body that each selects its own essential nutriment from the blood.

This means that all decay, all breaking down of the tissues, is checked and repair work begins. S. S. S. has such a specific influence on all blood ailments as to preserve their mutual welfare and afford a proper relative assistance to each other. More attention is being given to scientific medicine than ever before, and S. S. S. is the highest achievement in this line.

Do not fail to get a bottle of S. S. S. to-day. If your abscess is of such a nature that you would like to consult a specialist, write to the medical department, The Swift Specific Co., 214 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.

Beware of any attempt to sell you something else for the blood. Many people have been imposed upon by having some mineral mixtures palmed off on them. Ask for S. S. S. and insist that S. S. S. is what you propose to get.

Ship Lost 6 Years Found Fast in Ice

Steamer Centennial Deserted, Boats Gone, Off Siberia.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 24. The steamer Centennial, which left Japan six years ago for San Francisco with a cargo of sulphur and was never heard from, has been found fast in the ice off Saghalin Island, near Siberia.

A Russian expedition, bound through the Okhotsh Sea discovered the missing vessel, with lifeboats gone, the same partly obliterated and her iron work corroded. There was no sign of a human being on the ship.

The Centennial was an Alaskan gold ship, afterward a government transport and at last passed into the hands of Charles Nelson Company of San Francisco.

Why COOK'S Imperial Extra Dry Champagne

When you buy a rib roast you pay for the bone and the "trim" (which you can't eat) as well as the meat, which you can eat.

If a butcher came along who would sell you as good or better meat and who did not charge for the bone and trim, you would buy from him—that's not being "cheap," it's being intelligent.

When you buy a foreign made champagne you're paying $1.00 for import duty and ocean freight (which you can't drink—that's the "bone and trim") and $1.00 for the pint of wine.

When you buy Cook's Imperial you pay $1.00 (no bone—no trim) for a champagne that is truly superior in every respect—purity, sparkle, fragrance and deliciousness

WIFE OF BOGUS DUKE DE NEVERS GIVEN DIVORCE

Mrs. Anne Norma de Clancee and her three-year-old son, Paul, were missing from their boarding house on Wood street, Neponset, today, following the granting of her divorce from Philip de Clancee [illegible] Duke de Nevers, now serving a term in Charlestown State [illegible]

The [illegible] arrived at Hull After his wife, formerly his stenographer in Brooklyn, N. Y., had left him, de Clancee came to Boston and posed as the "Duke de Nevers." He registered at the Touraine, engaged a costly suite on the third floor, and soon had everybody in the hostelry jumping at his appearance.

He claimed that in France he was a judge of the "court de cassation" and when he visited the court house in Pemberton square he received all the honors due as "eminent jurist from a foreign country." Judge Burke of the Municipal Court invited the "duke" to occupy the bench with him.

Finally, the "duke" owed the Touraine $400 or more, much of which was for bad checks which had been cashed for him. He departed unceremoniously and was arrested in New York within a few days. He was brought back to Boston for trial and Judge Sanderson sentenced him to from six to ten years at hard labor as being a "common and notorious thief."

Hear Arguments on Lumber Trust

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—The right of middlemen to take steps to prevent wholesalers from selling direct to consumers today came before the Supreme Court when the suit of the government for alleged violation of the Sherman anti-trust law against the retail lumber dealers of the eastern States was up for argument. The retailers were enjoined in the New York Federal Court from eliminating lists of wholesalers who sold direct to the consumers.

QUALITY FURNITURE

SUMMERFIELD'S THE HOUSE OF DIGNIFIED CREDIT.

FURNITURE made to live with and enjoy as the years come on—well designed, of seasoned woods, properly put together and finished. Those are the kind of values and the only kind represented in Summerfield's immense stock of Furniture, Rugs, Stoves and Household Goods. The absence of all "trashy stuff" is one of the distinguishing features that places Summerfield's wholly in a class by itself. The comparative prices we quote are guaranteed by the whole strength of the store organization which stands fairly and squarely back of each and every one of them. This, as well as Summerfield's Dignified Credit, has been crowding our store all this month. Rain did not interfere with the thousands of satisfied customers who made their purchases. The Newly Weds can do better at Summerfield's. There's a reason Come in and investigate.

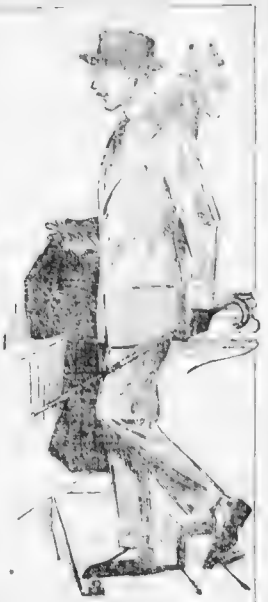
When We Say "All Sizes"



It Means More Different Sizes Than Any Store Ever Carried Before

It means we can fit men no other store can fit—men who were never properly fitted before. Any man who thinks he can't get fitted in a ready-to-wear suit will get a big surprise at this Live Store. For we'll put him into a suit of clothes designed, cut and tailored especially for a man of his particular build. And we won't tie him down to a few styles, either, but give him his pick from many.

Here are sizes for regular built men, stout men, tall men, short men, tall stout men, short stout men, round-shouldered men (whether of regular build, or stout or slim) and for extra tall men—the seven-footers. That's nearly, if not fully, double the number of different sizes, or cuts, carried by any other Boston store.

But carrying more sizes is not our only claim to distinction. We also show more good [illegible] from more good makers than you'll find anywhere else. [illegible] rent, biggest spot cash [illegible] stores and [illegible] give better value [illegible] can afford to [illegible]

Sidelights on Sports

By A. R. G. MITCHELL

GEORGE STALLINGS says President Lynch of the National League is "only an umpire."

He means to convey the idea that Lynch has never developed beyond the range of the official by the blue uniform who calls the balls and strikes makes other decisions and cans players who say things to him that they shouldn't say.

YEARS ago in the days of George Stallings and ... when Connie Mack first came to Philadelphia ... Orchestra a French horn player whose artistic skill on that wind instrument quickly attracted the attention of those in the audience that knew the difference between mediocre horn playing and really good horn playing. His reputation grew apace and in the course of time he became known as one of the most expert performers on the instrument in the world.

But as his reputation increased he began to abuse his wife and finally at the zenith of his career would feed her altogether. A friend remonstrated.

"Well, you see, it is like this," explained the celebrated musician. "When I was first married we was just like two leedle sparrows. But now I am a EAGLE." here he flicked the ashes from a cigarette and expanded his chest. "How my wife she is still a leedle sparrow yet."

STALLINGS' idea that Lynch is still a sparrow at the head of the National League, while he ought to be an eagle President Gaffney, it is understood, shares his manager's opinion of Lynch's ability.

While Garry Herrmann of Cincinnati, has no eagle to bring to the front as his candidate for the presidency of the old organization he is quite willing that an oak should be erected. Robert Brown, of Louisville, the man that Herrmann is grooming for the place, was formerly Grand Exalted Ruler of the B. P. O. E. Herrmann also held that high office once.

Of course, it takes a pretty able, not to say popular, man to be elected Exalted Ruler of the Elks. What the club owners of the National League wish to know, however, is "How much baseball does Mr. Brown know."

REPORTS that Konetchy is to be traded to the Giants are denied by President Hempstead and Manager McGraw. However, there is this to be said:

Before the close of the National League season Manager Huggins of the St. Louis Cardinals, confided to a prominent baseball man that he intended to trade off Konetchy, Meyers, Hauser and Sallee, and fill their places with men who would work for the interests of the team. These four men are very much dissatisfied with the berth in St. Louis, so Hug got 'em.

They are mighty good ball players most of them. The question arises: Wouldn't it be better to get a manager in St. Louis who can handle the discontented ones rather than "ge four good men go?

JEAN DUBUC, the pitcher of the Detroit club, as well as other men in baseball, are of the opinion that Bush, the Athletic's young hurler will be one of the greatest pitchers in baseball next year. Here is what the Tiger hurler has to say on the subject:

"Bush I believe, will be one of the greatest pitchers in this league in a year or so. He shut us out in Philadelphia on our last trip there, and in that game he displayed fifty per cent. more stuff than in any previous encounter with the Tigers. He had plenty of speed and a wicked curve ball of course, will never be in Walter Johnson class, but I would not be surprised if he won as many games. He will have a great team club behind him. Bush is a pitcher after the style of Jack Coombs, and is much better than Shawkey, Brower or Houck.

Six Cubs Refuse to Sign Contracts

CHICAGO, Oct. ... It has been learned here that President Charles Webb Murphy of the Cubs has already felt the steam roller crushing hand of the Baltimore Protective Fraternity.

It is a well known fact that the organization of which David ... is the head ... certain demands ... Cubs players whose contracts expired ... years from Murphy to sign. The mere fact that six refused to sign at this early date is no reflection on Murphy. He is only one of the many ... owners who will find themselves up against the same proposition.

They Find on a Trip to New York a Restaurant with the Latin Quarter Atmosphere

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

When Warren completed the number and [illegible] he had [illegible] in the [illegible] of an [illegible]

[illegible] a restaurant [illegible] old-fashioned, high [illegible]

[illegible] asked Helen, who [illegible] Mr. [illegible] a stress trip the [illegible] New York [illegible] night [illegible] bell."

The basement door was opened by a [illegible] in a [illegible] woman, [illegible] when Warren mentioned Mr. Stevens smiled cordially and led them through the kitchen to the small, [illegible] rear restaurant.

The place had not been spoiled by any cheap attempt at decoration. There was a tree and a few shrubs in one corner of the high whitewashed fence, and the rest of the space was given to tables. The starlit sky and a few flickering gas jets were the only lights.

Mr and Mrs. Stevens were already here and had kept for them two seats at their table by the high board fence.

"Why, it's like a bit of Paris," exclaimed Helen delightedly. "Like a student's cafe in the Latin Quarter."

"That's what we told you," said Mr. Stevens. "The three French sisters [illegible] a restaurant over there, [illegible] they've managed to transplant the atmosphere.

Was that one of the sisters who opened the door?" asked Warren.

"Yes, and this is the younger one," nodding to a pretty, dark-eyed girl who was waiting on the tables. "There's another who does the cooking."

And they do all the work of this [illegible]," asked Helen incredulously.

"A CHEAP PLACE

"Yes, and hate to mess upstairs. But they have a man for the dishwashing [illegible] must have been him as you came through the kitchen."

I noticed how clean everything was. I was always afraid of these cheap places because I thought they weren't [illegible]

"Well, it's all right here," asserted Mr. Stevens, glancing at the soup from which the younger sister had placed on their table.

"That's part of the atmosphere," laughed Mrs. Stevens, as a leaf drifted into Helen's plate.

"That part of the atmosphere, too?" Warren nodded to a lanky black cat stalking along the top of the fence.

"Oh, we went to the 'Black Cat' in Paris," began Helen. "It was really a quaintest place, a dark cellarlike [illegible] Cat it," interrupted Warren. "Yours is bad as Mrs. Murrin with her ever-[illegible]

[illegible] lasting 'When I was abroad and 'While we were in Paris.'"

"Do I talk here much about it?" Helen [illegible] Mr. Stevens.

"Not nearly enough," gaily. "What's the use of going abroad if you can't [illegible]

"Here your friends with your reminiscences," [illegible] Warren.

"You see that woman who just came in?" suggested Mrs. Stevens. "No, don't look now. She's on one of the papers, [illegible] society's dressed [illegible] on all literary women dress like frumps?"

"Can I look now?" asked Helen giving a quick, backward glance at the [illegible] newspaperwoman who [illegible]

"You've heard of Anna Eldridge Parker, haven't you? Well, that's her at that long table—the one with the black and white hat."

"Anna Eldridge Parker," repeated Helen blankly. "I've heard the name somewhere. What does she do?"

"Writes the mushy, heart-to-heart stuff for the woman's page of the News."

"Yes, I'm just finishing my book. I was revising the last chapters today," came a woman's shrill voice from the table just back of them.

"Who's going to bring it out?" a man's voice asked.

"I don't know yet," wearily. "Several publishers want it, but I haven't decided just where I'll place it."

"What a whopper," grinned Warren. "Don't know her from Adam, but I'll wager if she gets a book published she'll pay for having it done."

"Many of them do," laughed Mr. Stevens. "But they all pretend the publishers are slitting up sights for their books."

"Listen to this hot air," shrugged Warren, for now they could hear the man telling of his "play."

STAGE DREAMS

"Frohman and he'd take it if I'd rewrite the third act, but I told him I wanted it produced as it was or not at all. Belasco has it now. But these managers don't know a good play. There's a rocking big scene in the last act, which—the voice was lost in laughter from another table.

"Who's the guy with the hair?" asked Warren. "He looks the type."

"Yes, he's an illustrator; he's always here," answered Mr. Stevens. "That man next to him is an editor on some trade paper. A lot of near celebrities sit at that table. They put on there one night, but as we weren't writing a book of a play—we couldn't artistiture. It was good fun, though, hearing them discuss and settle the affairs of nations."

"How can those two girls wait on all this crowd?" demanded Warren, as the younger sister now took away their soup plates and brought from a large platter of beef tongue with piquant sauce.

"Oh, they're workers. You get better service right here than you do in any of the big restaurants where you pay four times as much."

From where Helen sat she could see the rear of the houses in the block beyond. They were evidently boarding houses, and many of the windows were lit. She had been watching a girl in a third story room fix her hair and then put on her hat, now she reached up to turn off the gas, and the window was dark. Helen wondered where she was going, what her life was, and what that room, of which she could see only a cheap oak dresser and a bit of the wall-paper, looked like.

"What's struck you?" as Warren noticed her absorption.

"Look dear—look up there! It's so interesting to watch those windows. See that one where the curtain's drawn? And that woman's shadow against it? What is she doing—she's bending over something!

"Ironing, isn't she?" suggested Mrs. Stevens.

"Probably some poor little shop girl ironing her shirtwaist to wear in the morning," mused Helen. "I should think the writers who come here would get a lot of stories just from watching those windows."

"Not they! They'd rather write a society novel, where the heroine steps from her limousine, trips up the broad marble steps to the door that's opened by a liveried footman. That girl ironing her shirtwaist in a back hall bedroom wouldn't interest this crowd."

"Yes, you keep your knife and fork," smiled Mrs. Stevens, as the French woman who took Helen's plate laid back on the table-cloth her knife and fork. "It makes it easier for them to serve, if they don't have to change the silver for every course."

"That ought to suit you, Helen, you only have to scour off one set for the meal."

GOOD FOOD

"He always scolds me for wiping off everything with my napkin," laughed Helen, "but I can't help it at restaurants."

The next course was broiled squab and salad. They were not cold storage squabs, for the flavor was fresh and delicate.

"Don't see how they can give this dinner for the money," declared Warren.

"What did you say it was—sixty-five?"

"No, it's only sixty five, wine included."

"Well, I don't see how they do it, with everything so high."

"That's what I say," observed Mrs. Stevens. "For two of us dinner here costs only $1.20—$1.65 with the tip. I couldn't get it at home for that."

"Well, they buy in quantity, and do all their own serving; and, of course, the French know how to save."

"Where do they eat here in the Winter?" asked Warren, suddenly.

"They have that big front room beyond the kitchen. But they can't get quite the atmosphere inside. They have out here."

"Isn't this salad dressing good? It's the red wine vinegar," announced Mrs. Stevens. "Too kind you buy it so cold. They make this from the wine that's left in the bottom of the kegs. I wonder if they would let me have some?"

MORE PRAISE

After the salad came fresh pears, cheese and coffee.

"This t'aucunbeurt's the real thing," Warren sniffed at it critically.

"Yes, and they serve a brie here that's A1."

It was after nine before Mr. Stevens took down his cane from a nail on the white-washed fence and made the move to go.

"Hold on there," protested Warren, "we haven't paid our bill yet."

"We pay in the kitchen as we go out."

One of the sisters made the change from a cigar box on the kitchen table and bowed them out with a smiling, "Good night, monsieur! Good night, mademoiselle!"

"Uh, I've enjoyed it so much," enthused Helen, as they went out the basement door and up the steps to the street.

"And we've been telling you about it for a year," complained Mrs. Stevens.

"Well," declared Warren, emphatically, "that's the best dinner in America for the money."

A Message To Thin, Weak, Scrawny Folks

An Easy Way to Gain 10 to 30 Lbs. of Solid, Healthy, Permanent Flesh

This, nervous, underfed men and women everywhere are asked to say, "I would like to, but why? Do not get fat. I eat plenty of good, nourishing food." The reason is just this: You cannot get fat, no matter how much you eat, unless your digestive organs assimilate the fat-making elements of your food and carry them out through the body as waste.

What is needed is a means of gently urging the assimilative functions of the stomach and intestines to absorb the oils and fats and bear them over to the blood, where they may reach the tissues and cells, and there nourish and build them up. The thin person's body is like a dry sponge—there is nothing for the fatty materials of which it is being deprived by the inactive digestive organs to take up from the food. The best way to overcome this condition is to find something that will help stop the leakage of fats in the body, so that only the nourished digestive fluids can be absorbed and so harm to circulate with every meal and bath. Then you will soon begin to put on solid flesh, healthy flesh are deposited over your body, nervous ends your gaunt, angering point. Your weight has begun to gain, you will begin to feel like a real man or woman, and will have more energy than you ever had before. If you are not satisfied with the gain in weight in two weeks, you can get your money back. Sargol is inexpensive, and a single dollar package will prove its merit.

Caution—While Sargol is a scientific flesh-producing medicine, and not a stimulating nervous drug, making false, overstimulated strength, it should not be taken unless you are willing to gain ten pounds or more in a reasonable length of time.

"Let the GOLD DUST TWINS do your work"

The Coquette BY NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1913, by International News Service

A GOOD little mother, when her wee kid does a cruel thing, takes the little savage up on her gentle knee and explains to him that he has hurt a living thing as he would not like to be hurt, and so, before he catches Bepo's tail tip in the door he must look hard at his own small pink finger and think if he would like it pinched also in the closing door! But if her little savage is too little—too newsome, too near to the wild state that looks almost always from little children's eyes, with the tang of the barbarian of ages gone still clinging about his small fatness—then she has another way of nipping cruelty out of this pain-blind blossom of hers. Haven't you heard her? "Little boy, dear, let mother tell you this: Be kind to everything that lives and moves, for what you do shall come back to you some day, one way or another. If you hurt and torment then some day you will suffer, too."

But who ever turns a laughing, lovely girl about and says to her: "My dear, flirting may be fun, playing at love may seem a harmless sport, but let me tell you this: Whoever deliberately dangles poor Love by his frail wings just to see him squirm will be held up some day by her own opalescent maiden wings. Who tormenta Love and smiles shall some day hold that hurt in her own heart and have to smile."

You may see this picture as your own fancy likes—just a pretty image of all womankind, wicked and angel-good, tender and thoughtless, innocent and worldly wise, all lovely woman, tossing Dan Cupid—or (as I meant it) the deliberate coquette, in whatever shape she be, tormenting and playing with a lovely thing that she has come upon.

More About the Pretty Nurse in

A Bachelor's Diary

The Mysterious "Max" Finds Himself Being Drawn Further and Further Into the Net

By MAX

SEPT 30—The architect has been here two days, and, of course, it was just my luck to draw a young man who looks at every woman he meets as if anxious to learn why she has laid off her halo.

Mrs. Allen began making his kind of pie before he had removed the travel stains from his clothes, and Richards—that I should live to know such treason!—looks at him as if she had forgotten how old she is.

And when a woman, Diary, begins to look at a man as if she had forgotten how old she is, it is time to viewwith alarm.

As for the nurse. "You forget," I said to her reproachfully, "that dimensions, drainage pipes, sanitary conditions, etc., of a house are not in your line. Your training is to apply all such architectural knowledge to the human system."

"Jealous?" a little maliciously.

No, I was not jealous. I was just forsaken, that's all. Even Manette hovers around this new young man, the pup alone being true to me.

I wouldn't like it if they didn't like this young man, and I don't like it because they do. There is in every man a good deal of the primitive, and no centuries of culture and training will take it out of him. Whether living in a cave and ruling with a club, or the highest salaried instructor in the finest school and ruling by reason of his well-trained brain, he is, when another man comes into his territory, like a bull in a field when a second bull plunges in.

He resents the presence of the new comer, and he immediately begins to bellow and paw the earth and prepare for a contest of strength.

HIS ONLY FRIEND

October 1.—When I went for my daily walk to the turn of the lonesome little path into the darkness of the forest this morning, I went alone. The experience of starting off without Manette running to catch up with me, or Richards looking enviously after me, or the nurse saying some quarrelsome good-bye in a charming manner, or Mrs. Allen calling from the dining room window that I certainly am making rapid improvement, was entirely new, and a trifle unpleasant.

"They have all forgotten me," I was thinking childishly when I felt something cold poked into my hand. It was the pup's nose!

"When I get back to town," I said, sitting on a big log that stretched along the side of the path, and addressing Him Dogship, "I am going to found a home for dogs, and we won't let a woman inside the gate."

He wagged his tail, and then, squatting in front of me, gravely raised his right paw and rested it on my knee, looking at me in the meanwhile with serious eyes. I knew then, as well as if he had told it to me, that Mrs. Allen has neglected to give him his chicken bones since the architect came; that the nurse no longer says he is the dearest dog in the world, and that Richards has quite fallen into the habit of forgetting to pat him on the head.

As for Manette! I touched the gay ribbon bow tied in the back of his collar. It hasn't been changed for two days!

"Shall we go away," I said to him, "to some lonely spot in the woods, and die together?"

He pressed his paw a little heavier on my knee and gave a low whimper. He was quite resigned to die, and so was I. Then we turned back toward the house and found Manette in tears because the plans for the new house didn't include a room for the architect!

"We will carry out our mournful plans tomorrow," I said in an aside to the pup, and he brushed closer to me to show that he understood.

But after dinner, his consisting of a plateful of chicken bones and a saucer of cream, and mine baked trout, delicious ly cooked vegetables, creamy biscuits and an excellent pudding, the tie of sympathy between us did not seem so strong

HE IS RECONCILED

It takes suffering to nurture a spirit of fellowship. The pup no longer suffered, and I, with Manette on my lap, the pretty nurse in a low chair nearby, Richards with her mending on the other side of the lamp, and the architect gone for a stroll over to the hotel ALONE, felt quite reconciled to life

"But we won't forget the way we were treated," I said aloud, to the pup, who was lying in front of the grate fire. He lazily blinked one eye, and began to snore.

Manette and Richards wanted to know what I meant. The pretty nurse only laughed

"He means," she answered for me, "that he and the pup have found a new place to hurt bones."

A respectful way to speak of the man who employs her, and so I told her late that night when I was in bed, and she was trying to rub a stubborn pain out of my shoulder.

"I once had a dog myself," was her reply, "and every time I felt abused I relied my wrongs out on his neck. And a human being and a dog can work up a sympathy for each other that reaches the highest pitch. Any one who has a feeling that the world isn't treating him right has only to look into the sympathetic eyes of his dog, and his suspicion that he is the worst-treated person on earth is confirmed. That's why men like dogs; dogs always look so sorry for a man, and that is what every man wants."

"You know so much about the weakness of my sex," I grumbled, "that I will be glad when I am well and can let you go."

Her reply that she was ready to go any time I met by throwing one arm around her neck and holding her till she promised to stay as long as I wanted her to stay

"I sometimes think," I said a little later, "that I will be glad when you are ready to stay forever."

I used to complain that my pretty nurse was too mechanical in her attention to me. There are moments now when, in my returning vigor and vitality, she is not mechanical enough for my own safety

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

A PROBLEM IN ECONOMY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

How much do you think a wife can save each week out of $22.50, four to clothe and feed?

What I mean by four is two children, myself and husband.

I pay $10 a month rent and gas. I am considered a good housekeeper.

MINNIE W.

YOU have $90 a month; $10 for rent and gas leaves $74. It has been demonstrated that table expenses for four may be kept within a dollar a day, which leaves a margin of $44 for clothes, shoes, sickness, amusements, the repair on household furniture and the tax in the name of friendship, such as gifts, entertaining, etc., which few escape.

If you can put away, week after month, as much as $10 you are doing well.

CERTAINLY NOT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have kept company with a young man three years my senior and have noticed that he lacks some points of etiquette. I have known him three months and like him very well. Would it be proper for me to correct him?

BRUNETTE.

NO man ever lived who could take corrections without a spirit of resentment. If you want to lose him, correct him, by all means. You like him very well." My dear, that is not loving kind. If you loved him you would not see his faults.

THE KING OF DIAMONDS

BY LOUIS TRACY

A THRILLING STORY OF A MODERN MONTE CRISTO

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

Copyright, 1904, by Edward J. Clode

"Ah if you may well ax that," said old O'Brien. "Sure she didn't build it at all at all. She was a poor widdy in'in' alone-s, wid one son, Mr. Philip that is now. She was a born lady, but she kem down in the worruld and died forlorn and forgotten, in a little shanty in Johnson's Mews as it was called in those days."

"I remember it well."

"Ye do, eh? Mebbe ye know my ould shop, the marine store near the entrance to the court?"

"Yes."

THE DIAMOND KING

"Arrah, ye don't tell me so. Me eyes are gettin' wake, an' I can't make out yer face. What's yer name?"

"Oh, I'm afraid we didn't know one another. I can't recall your name, though I recollect the shop well enough. But, if Mrs. Anson died so poor, how was her son able to set this great house on its legs? It must have cost a mint of money."

"Fait, ye're right. Quarter of a million wint afore there was a boy under its roof. And they say it costs fifty thousand pounds a year to keep it goin'. But Mr. Philip would find that and more to delight the sowl of the mother that's dead. Sure it's nigh for him, in a way. Isn't he the Diamond King?"

"The Diamond King? Why is he called that?"

"D'ye mane to say you niver—Man alive, what part of creation did ye live in that ye didn't hear tell of Mr. Philip Anson, the boy who discovered an extra goodsoil diamond mine of his own, no one knows where. Sure, now, what's wrong wid ye?"

For the visitor was softly using words which to O'Brien's dull ears sounded very like a string of curses.

"I'm sorry," growled the other, with an effort. "I've been to Africa, an' I got such a spasm now an' then in my liver that I can hardly stand."

"That's no way to cure yourself—profanin' the name of th' Almighty," cried O'Brien.

"No. I'm sorry, I tell you. But about this boy"——

"There's no more to see now, if ye plaze. That's the way out."

O'Brien was deeply offended by the language used beneath a roof hallowed by the name of Mary Anson. The sightseer had to go, and quickly. Another commissionaire, who was observing them from a distance, came up and asked O'Brien what the stranger was talking about.

"Ye never heard sich a blaggard," said the old man, indignantly. "I was in the middle of tellin' him about Mr. Philip when he began to curse like Ould Nick himself."

In the Mile End road the raw-boned person who betrayed such excitement found the policeman awaiting him. He sprang onto a 'bus, and purposely glared at the officer in a manner to attract his attention. When at a safe distance he put his fingers to his nose. The constable smiled.

"I knew I was right," he said. "I don' need to look twice at that sort of customer."

And he entered the Mary Anson Home again to ask the porter what had taken place.

It was an easy matter for Jocky Mason, released from Portland Prison on ticket-of-leave, after serving the major portion of a sentence of fourteen years' penal servitude—the man he assaulted had died, and the ex-convict narrowly escaped being hanged—to ascertain the salient facts of Philip Anson's later career.

It was known to most men. He was biographed briefly in Who's Who and had often supplied material for a column of gossip in the newspapers. Every free library held books containing references to him.

It was quite impossible that the source of his great wealth should remain hidden for all time. In one way and another it leaked out, and he became identified with the rugged youth who created a sensation in the dock of Clerkenwell Police Station.

But this was years later, and the clever manipulation of Mr. Abingdon, as his estate agent, and of Mr. Isaacstein, as his representative in the diamond trade, completely frustrated all attempts to measure the true extent of the meteor's value.

A MINE OWNER.

For now Philip owned a real diamond mine in South Africa; he had a fine estate in Sussex, a house in Park Lane, a superb sea-going yacht, a colliery in Yorkshire and vast sums invested in land and railways. The latent value of his gems and been converted into money-earning capital.

Mr. Abingdon proved himself to be a very able business man. When the administration of Philip's revenue became too heavy a task for his unaided shoulders he organized a capital estate office, with well-trained lawyers, engineers and accountants to conduct its various departments, while he kept up an active supervision of the whole until Philip quitted his university and was old enough to begin to bear some portion of the burden.

They agreed to differ on this important question. Philip was fond of travel and adventure. With great difficulty his "guardian" kept him out of the army, but compromised the matter by allowing the young millionaire to roam about the odd corners of the world in his yacht for eight months of the year, providing he spent four months of the season in London and Sussex attending to affairs.

In this month of April he was living in his town house. In July he would go to Fairfax Hall, in August to Scotland, and a month later would joyfully fly to the Forth, where the Sea Maiden awaited him.

This lady, whose waist measured eighteen feet across and whose length was seventy feet, with a fine spread of canvas and auxiliary steam, was the only siren able to charm him.

He was tall now, and strongly built, with something of the naval officer in his handsome, resolute face and well set-up figure. As a bobby, he had taken out a master mariner's certificate, and he could navigate his own ship in the teeth of an Atlantic gale. He loved to surround himself with friends, mostly Oxford men of his year, but he seldom entertained ladies, either on board the Sea Maiden or in either of his two fine mansions.

He avoided society in its general acceptance, refused all overtures to mix in politics, took a keen delight in using his great wealth to alleviate distress anonymously, and earned a deserved reputation as a "freak" among the few match-making mammas who managed to make his acquaintance.

In other respects, as the boy was so was the man—the same downright character, the same steadfast devotion to his mother's memory, the same reluctance to adherence to a course already decided on, and the same whole-hearted reciprocity of friendship.

As he stood in his drawing-room before dinner on the evening of the day Jockey Mason revisited the locality, if not the surroundings, of his capture, Philip's strong face wore an unwonted expression of annoyance. He walked to and fro from end to end of the beautiful room, pausing each time he reached the window to gaze out over the park.

A servant, who entered for the purpose of turning on the electric lights and lowering the blinds, was bidden, almost impatiently, to wait until Philip and his guests were at dinner.

A TELEGRAM

A telegram came. Anson opened it and read:

"Was dressing to come to your place when Grainger telegraphed for me to act as substitute Lincoln Quarter Sessions. Must go down at once. FOX."

"No answer," he said, adding, to himself:

"That's better. Fox's caustic humor would have worried me tonight. I wish Abingdon would come. I am eager to tell him what has happened."

Now, punctuality was one of Mr. Abingdon's many virtues. At half past seven to the tick his brougham deposited him at the door.

The two met with a cordial greeting that showed the close ties of mutual good fellowship and respect which bound them together.

"Fox won't be here," said Philip. "Grainger has broken down—ill health, I suppose—and wired for him to go to Lincoln."

"Ah, that's a lift for Fox. He is a clever fellow, and if he manages to tell the jury a joke or two he will influence a verdict as unfairly as any man I know."

"Does it not seem to you to be rather an anomaly that justice, which in the abstract is impeccable, too often depends on other issues which have no possible bearing on the merits of the dispute itself?"

"My dear boy, that defect will continue until the crack of doom. Pascal laid it bare in an epigram—'Plaisante justice! qu'une rivere on une montaigne borne! Verite au deca du Pyrenees, erreur au dela!' It all depends on which side the Pyrenees Fox happens to be."

"Unfortunately, I am straddling the water shed at the moment. I have made a very unpleasant discovery, Abingdon, and I am glad we are alone tonight—we can speak freely. Some people named Sharpe & Smith wrote to me yesterday."

"I know them—an old-established firm of solicitors."

"Well, they urged me to give them an appointment on a private matter, and I did so. They began by trying to cross-examine me, but that was an abject failure. Seeing that whatever they had to say must stand on its own legs, they told me an extraordinary story. It appears that at a place called The Hall, Betham, Devon, lives an elderly baronet named Sir Philip Morland."

"Morland! Philip Morland!"

"Ah, you remember the name! It was given to a young derelict who once figured in the dock before you on a charge of being in unfaiful possession——"

"The matter is not serious, then?"

"It is very serious. The real Philip Morland is my uncle."

The mother turned towards the pulpit, and made the audible remark: "Oh, 'e ain't, ain't 'e? But you're a-disturbin' of 'im!"

Science Questions

By EDGAR LUCIEN LARKIN

Q.—"It is thought that in space, eternal cold and darkness prevail, what then is the explanation of the fact that both light and heat from the sun, some ninety million miles away, in cold space reaches the earth?"

A.—Heat and light as such does not reach the earth from our own and 100,000,000 more suns. Radiant energy is transmitted by undulations or waves in electrons, which energy is in the form of waves of varying lengths and amplitudes. When some of these energy impulses impinge on matter able to receive and appropriate them heat and light result. Many molecules in many thousands of kinds of matter are able to translate energy waves into heat, while others are translated as light on the retina of the eye and in the brain. But no heat nor light develops until the waves strike forms of matter fitted to receive, appropriate and translate. Thus energy will pass through a "burning glass" made of ice, converge to a focus, and set light objects on fire.

Q.—"Has it been practically proven that ether does not exist? If nothing exists but electrons, and these are relatively far apart, how can the various waves of heat, light and electricity, of such different lengths, be transmitted thereby?" Rutherford and to Madam Curie.

A.—It has not been proved that ether does or not exist. But the capital discovery of electrons and the study of their properties, these and more, seem to meet all requirements of physicists, in transmission of space-waves of all known kinds, lengths and rates of undulation, and their specific speeds. If electrons could by any human means impossible, since they repell be forced to lie side by side, then a row one inch long would contain 12,700,000,000,000. The shortest space-waves so far detected by the most delicate photography are 254,000 to an inch. Omit the twelve trillion, then there would still be seven hundred billion electrons to the linear inch. Then the line in space is almost empty. But this wave would find enough space electrons the actual ether to transmit its impulses, the enormous number, 2,744,000,000. What then shall be said of the huge numbers of electrons met and moved in the shortest visible waves of light, 60,000 to the inch, or longest visible, 33,000 to one inch? Electrons dispersed throughout all that part of the ethereal universe, whose outlying suns are so far away that their images, much smaller than needle points, tax the most powerful telescopes to reveal on sensitive plates, meet all physical requirements of any other imagined from Lucippius and Democritis, to Newton, Dr'ico and Michelson, to Thomson and

Little Bobbie's Pa

The teacher asked us to rite a essay on What Constitoots Gratenesss, & last nite I asked Pa & Ma to help me rite it.

They are reading the children aloud too fast these days, and Ma, the idea of asking a child to rite a essay with a subjeck like that.

It may seem like a very deep subjeck to you, sed Pa, but it is mere child's play for me. I will help Bobbie rite his essay. You go right ahead looking at yure fashion magazine, and Pa. Bobbie can into the library ware we will be close to the books & I will rite yure essay with you.

In the first place, sed Pa, wen we got into the library, true gratteness is what the teacher ment wen she gave you that subjeck. What Constitoots Gratteness, of course there are different kinds of grate. Now, Joe Wood, for instance, is the greatest pitcher that ever lived, & yet he will not live in history as a grate man. Bryan is a grate talker, & yet he will never be remembered as Lincoln was remembered. Jack Johnsing is a grate prize fiter, but that lets him out. None of these men might be sed to be truly grate, Pa told me. Greatness of the reel sort is the grateness of a Shakspeer or a Caesar, or, to be most modern, like me, sed Pa.

The surest way to tell reel grateness or to spot a grate man, sed Pa is to notice his close. He will never look like a tramp on the bench in the park, Pa sed, but he will never look like a picture of a man like you see on cards in the tailor shops. All of them men on the tailor cards, said Pa, has high, stiff collars & they ware leather gloves, rite in the middle of the Summer eten.

I always thought that was the rite way to dress, I told Pa.

It may be the rite way to dress for a ring man that likes to dress, sed Pa, but it ain't the rite way to dress if you are a grate man. Looking at Abraham Lincoln with one of them Aspire hats with a bow on the back of it, Pa sed, or think of Ceasar leading his Romans against the Gauls with a high, stiff collar on. Why, sed Pa, if one of them Gauls cood hit Ceasar on the top of the head it would cut his throte. Ni Bubbin sed Pa, the truly grate men of all time have been men which believed in having there clothes comfortable but not stylish. They succeeded in being clean & neat a little whenever it was handy, but more than one grate man has been known to live in a place and this wheres any room with bath. I herd a rong man saying the other day that he wud die if he didnt have his shower every morning, Pa sed.

A other way that you can always tell a truly grate man, sed Pa, is by his modesty. You never hear a grate man bragging about himself. Look at me, for instance, sed Pa. Did you ever here me bragging on my own grateness? Did you ever hear me claiming to be grater than the men with which I associiate daily?

No, sed Pa, I never herd you say you was grate. That is why I never knew you was a grate man till now.

Awards be like rose buttes, Bubbie, sed Pa. A man may pin one, may be truly grate. Then he went into the other room & I herd Ma that Pa had helped me rite my essay. He sed that Cleaver & Lincoln & himself was the truly grate men, I told Ma.

Indeed, sed Ma, how thoughtful of your father to think of his friends, Abe and Judas.

Up-to-Date Jokes

The late Lord Young was responsible for enlivening many a dull case. One of the most amusing remarks that ever fell from his lips was the reply to a counsel who urged on behalf of a plaintiff of somewhat libidinous appearance:

"My client, my lord, is a most able man, and holds a very responsible position. He is manager of some waterworks."

After a long look Lord Young answered:

"Yes, he looks like a man who could be trusted with any amount of water."

The other day a man with a ruby nose was brought before a magistrate, charged with impersonating a police officer.

"What have you to say?" asked the magistrate.

"I am innocent," replied the man.

"What did he do?" asked the magistrate.

"What did he do?" exclaimed the policeman haughtily, who had hoped that such a question would not be put. "Why, he tapped three times at the door of a saloon on my beat, and when the landlord showed the door out through the half-closed door he took it and drank it. That's what he did!"

Amid roars of laughter the case was dismissed.

"Why! It's Simply Delicious!"

"Yes, it is made of LIEBIG'S OXO BOUILLON CUBES, and they save me no end of time, work and money."

"That is so, and do you know they give a wonderful flavor to gravies, soups and sauces?

"DR." FELTON BEGINS B. & M. "DIAGNOSIS"

President Samuel L. Felton of the Chicago & Great Western Railroad—known as the "railroad doctor" because of a general tour of the Boston & Maine system today for the purpose of "diagnosing" the road's physical condition.

"Doctor" Felton, as he is known in railroad circles, came East at the request of President Elliott of the New Haven, was is anxious to have an "outsider" inspect the Boston & Maine and report an expert "diagnosis" of just what is the matter with the road and what it needs. President Elliott told Interstate Commerce Commissioner Prouty that unless $27,000,000 is raised within the next few months the Boston & Maine will be forced into the hands of a receiver.

President Felton is making his tour in a train known as the "physician's special," made up of three private cars. With "Doctor" Felton on his clinical trip is a staff of engineering and mechanical experts from the West.

GARY EXPLAINS WHY BUSINESS ISN'T BETTER

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—Political muddling and the common belief that every wealthy man has them to influence and power by other than honest means were among the causes attributed by Judge Elbert H. Gary for the unsettled business conditions throughout the country in his address today at the semi-annual meeting of the United States Steel Corporation, of which he is chairman of directors. He said:

People of other countries are puzzled because here in the United States, without great natural resources, with our wealth and modern facilities, we are not more prosperous; why we are not more stable in prices and general conditions.

This condition is largely due to the unnecessary agitation and ill-considered criticism by those who have not the country's best interests at heart. There is too much demagogy, too much mud-slinging.

In many public speeches and articles the author is influenced by motives of selfishness and cupidity. It is not uncommon in public discussion to treat success as an offense; to consider the possession of wealth as wrong. Legislation calculated to create classes is urged persistently. Capital, always timid, is becoming frightened over these unreasonable and uncalled for attacks.

Over 50,000 more people buy the AMERICAN every Sunday than buy any other Boston Sunday newspaper.

LLOYD-GEORGE LAND PLAN IS FORBES' TOPIC

By B. C. FORBES,
Business Editor of the American.

The world tends to become a unit. When the people of one country evolve a law that works well, other nations are apt to adopt it. Legislation on this frequently creeps across the Atlantic nowadays.

Americans, especially ultra-rich Americans, should watch what happens to British landlords and to British land. Heretofore, land has been sacred, untouchable by legislators for wealth, in possession ordained to descend from one eldest son to another with powerless to dispose of one acre of it.

But now the Lloyd-George government proposes to create a majority of lands to take the land out of chancery, to stop idle, parasitical owners from preserving large tracts for the rearing of deer, grouse, pheasants and rabbits for their amusement while thousands upon thousands of able-bodied men, denied a piece of soil to till, sail away to alien lands, thus draining Britain of her best blood and brawn, the kind on which the nation's very existence must depend in the last resortfor.

Hereafter, if a landlord does not utilize his acres, the government, it is proposed, will take them over "at a reasonable price" and let more willing hands fructify them.

Landlordism shares with drunkenness the dishonor of being Britain's worst curse.

It is the time the unworthy landowners had their wings clipped and Lloyd-George essays to do it.

"Vested interests" in the United States would do well to follow developments in Great Britain.

TODAYS STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

Stocks sold a little higher during the first hour after opening irregular. The market improved more in tone than in extent of trading. Prices began to wane toward the end of the hour.

Trading had a narrow range in Boston and the feature was the slump in Boston & Maine. It sold as low as 57, off 6 and by 11 o'clock had recovered to 57½. New Haven had declined to 82 and recovered a fraction. At 82¼ it was off a point.

Prices were mixed in New York where both New Haven and Pennsylvania had sold at new low prices. Pennsylvania touched 107⅝ and New Haven 81¾. Most price changes were fractional. Union Pacific, Reading, American Can and Rock Island preferred were higher and Canadian Pacific, Steel, Amalgamated, American Smelting and St. Paul were lower.

New York Market Improved.

The New York market opened irregular, but improved within a few minutes, after moving to a higher range during the first half hour. The advance was due to London influences. American stocks being sluggish and uncertain there. The foreign financial situation is said to be better, but this has not promoted speculation on the other side. One short item regarding the failure of copper shares to reflect more decisively the strength of the metal market is that some Standard Oil capitalists who have copper affiliations think the business outlook is bad.

Reading was prominent in the upturn in New York this morning, and Union Pacific and Rock Island preferred advanced materially. There were early fractional gains for Pennsylvania, Atchison, Erie and Amalgamated, as well as some other issues. Coppers, in fact, showed improvement as a group. Amalgamated, Smelting and Utah Copper advancing. Steel sold higher.

Proposes a Great Government Bank.

The plan of President Vanderlip of the National City Bank of New York for a great central bank of issue to be absolutely controlled by the government and capitalized by popular subscriptions to its stock goes farther in the way of government control than the pending currency bill, which is supposed to be extremely radical from the Wall Street point of view. He suggested to the Senate Banking Committee that such a bank be instituted and capitalized at $10,000,000, and that it shall be managed by a board appointed by the President for terms of fourteen years each at a salary of $15,000 a year, with $17,500 for the chairman, under such restrictions that politics never can enter into the management of the institution, and under such safeguards that will make it a people's institution in which the banks cannot have any voice whatever.

It would be given power to issue circulating notes, rediscount commercial paper and concentrate within its vaults the reserve gold of the country. It also would operate as the fiscal agent of the United States.

Banks would have no voice in the control of this "People's Bank" either, but would have in regional banks under the Glass-Owen measure.

How Senators Regard Plan.

The pending bill has been held up in committee to a more or less extent by objections to some of its provisions made by Senators O'Gorman, Reed and Hitchcock, Democrats, and Bristow, Weeks and Nelson, Republicans. It is interesting therefore to be informed by a Washington dispatch that they expressed approval of the principle of the Kane-Vanderlip plan. Several of these Senators represent conservatism in politics as much as Mr. Vanderlip does conservatism in banking. It is reported by wire:

"In the end something of this sort may be substituted for the pending bill, and if the matter is put to a test in the senate tonight that the committee would stand eight to four in favor of a measure constructed on the plan suggested by the New York banker.

"Mr. Vanderlip stated frankly that he thought bankers might receive it with some indications of a shock at first, because of the complete government control, but that when they understood its safeguards it would be accepted with favor."

Steel Trust Accused by Mail.

A letter has been received by the Department of Justice in which the United States Steel Corporation is accused of planning to close one of its largest plants and lay off 8,000 workingmen if the government does not drop its suit against the so-called trust. Government officials characterized the letter as "hearsay" evidence, and when it was received it was stated: "The Attorney General has no means of ascertaining its source. The department will take no steps in the matter until action is warranted by the law."

Information regarding the sender of the letter was refused.

Chairman Gary of the United States Steel Corporation said reports from Washington that the Steel Corporation planned a wholesale shutdown to coerce the government in connection with the Sherman act suits "were too foolish to be worth serious consideration.

"It is preposterous," he said, "to think that the corporation would attempt to influence or coerce the government by discharging men. The corporation will never lay off a man unless it is forced to by business conditions."

Brokers Are Not Making Much.

There is little money being made in stocks, according to reports from all sources. Even the public is coming to understand that a broker is not necessarily an individual who can pick dollars off the bushes as easily as a berry hook is gleaned in August. One New York newspaper remarks anent the situation:

"Unless business picks up very soon, suppliers of many Wall Street houses are going to have a lean year. It comes hard upon a broker to have to think twice before he spends a quarter for a cigar, but profits have been so reduced with many men that they have had to give up smoking altogether. Stockbrokers who were asking for specifications on seagoing yachts a few years ago have been hanging out "for sale" signs in their fine houses this Fall. There are too many brokers for the amount of stock business which has been done on an average day in recent weeks, and, as the business is never evenly divided, some of them have made fewer than nothing."

Financial News in Brief.

The London copper warrants market had strength this morning, spot being up £6 and futures 6s.

An initial dividend of one per cent. on the preferred stock has been declared by the Seaboard Air Line. This does not cover back dues a year. Earnings for the fiscal year were equal to 7⅞ per cent. on the preferred shares, compared with 7¾ per cent. a year.

President John Claflin of the New York Chamber of Commerce and a leader of the jobbing trade, says: "The general business is "surprisingly good." He thinks the corner has been turned for the better in the money market.

It is said that American consumers have already bought a small amount of steel abroad, but that domestic producers are checked importers by lowering quotations.

Banker George Blumenthal says: "My opinion, as an American who has been abroad, is that the cost of living, measured in finished wares, will never again be brought down to its former level."

September was a record foreign trade month for the United States. September imports were $203,562,757, against $144,819,493 in 1912, the former high record for September. September exports were $219,185,541, against $169,078,082 in 1912, also the former high record.

Denies Bresnahan Will Lead Dodgers

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 24.—President Charles W. Murphy of the Chicago Nationals, who is in this city, denied today that Roger Bresnahan had been traded to Brooklyn and would succeed William Dahlen as manager of that club.

Murphy said there was absolutely no truth in the report.

Zanzibar May Be Ceded to Germany

ZANZIBAR, Oct. 24.—It is rumored here that Great Britain will shortly cede Zanzibar to Germany in return for territory or concessions elsewhere.

300,000 more people buy the AMERICAN every evening than buy any other Boston evening newspaper.

Back Pictures and Answer Lists Permit Anyone to Enter The American's Picture Puzzle Contest Start Now! $4000 All Cash Prizes

Readers by the hundred are every day joining the ranks of the picture puzzle solvers.

And well they might, the cash reward is big and the effort required is nothing—in fact, the daily mental exercise necessary to find the correct answers to the pictures is a positive pleasure.

No one need feel that it is "too late" to start. It is NOT too late! It is NEVER too late to start until the last picture appears on Monday, December 15th.

Everything is made easy for you. You do not have to grope in the dark, because among the list of a few hundred names or cities printed each week in the Sunday AMERICAN, will be found the correct answer to each and every picture printed.

From an educational standpoint, this competition is different from any other of this character previously conducted by any newspaper. The range of subjects represented is wide and every contestant will have a better fund of information on the subject of books, authors, plays, actors, etc.

Examine the picture printed with this announcement. It represents the name of a poet. Can you solve it? If the right solution does not occur to you, all you have to do is to send for the back answer list which appeared in last Sunday's AMERICAN, Oct. 19th, and which contained about 300 names to poets, AMONG WHICH IS THE CORRECT ANSWER TO THIS PICTURE.

Nothing very difficult about it, is there? Think you can solve it, do you? Well, you can! And without any difficulty, if you will but set your mind to the task.

Don't delay! Get busy on today's picture, right now, THIS VERY MINUTE! Then send for the back pictures and back answer lists and you are a full-fledged contestant with just as much chance of winning the $1,000 capital prize as any contestant who started with Picture No. 1 on the first day it appeared.

Your opportunity is here! Don't throw it aside! Act now—by sending for the back pictures and answer lists, and you will quickly realize that you are engaged in one of the most fascinating, interesting games imaginable.

Here Is the Plan of the Contest
READ CAREFULLY

Each day for 85 days (commencing Sunday, Sept. 21) the Boston AMERICAN will print a puzzle picture representing authors and their books, poets, plays, proverbs, battles, universities, inventors, actors, books, cities, buildings and public men and women. $4,000 in cash prizes will be awarded to the 155 competitors who secure the largest number of correct answers according to the rules of the contest which appear each week in the Sunday AMERICAN.

Lack of familiarity with the subjects used need bar no one from competing because there will be printed each week in the Sunday AMERICAN an official list of names or titles, among which will be found the CORRECT answers to the pictures to be used during the week commencing with this Sunday list publication.

That's all there is to it—there is no book to buy, or other expenses of any kind necessary.

All you have to do is to purchase the Daily and Sunday AMERICAN as each issue appears.

SPECIAL NOTICE

For the convenience of those who may miss or have missed any of the regular issues, all back puzzle pictures and weekly answer lists may be obtained at the regular price of the paper in which said pictures or answer lists appeared, viz., one cent for each daily back picture and five cents for each Sunday back picture or answer list.

Glance down the prize list and get busy right now—today, for the big $1,000 cash prize.

1st Prize.....	$1000.00	Cash

PROBATION COMMISSIONER EDWIN MULREADY, to whom a "welcome home" baquet is to be given on Tuesday.

EDWIN MULREADY

Next Tuesday evening a complimentary dinner will be given at Hotel Somerset to Probation Commissioner Edwin Mulready. The dinner will be a formal welcome home to Mr. Mulready from Milan, Italy, where he attended an international congress as the special representative of the Governor of Massachusetts.

Great interest is manifested in the banquet, the guest of honor being known and respected by all classes throughout the State. The chairman of the banquet committee is W. Bonovan of Rockland, which is Mr. Mulready's home town. Joseph H. O'Neil is treasurer.

COAL BARONS MAKE LITTLE, SAYS EXPERT

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24.—"The transportation companies get the milk in the cocoanut," while the anthracite operator has a hard time making even a slender profit on his investment, according to Edward J. Parker, statistician of the United States Geological Survey, in his address before the American Mining Congress in session here.

Therefore, Mr. Parker added, if any one is robbing the people on the price of coal, the miner is not the one the coal baron, but somebody else. In fact, he said, the coal mining industry is almost demoralized in the United States, and the dividing line between profit and loss is very fatal.

"I venture to state, taking the industry as a whole, that there are few lines of industry in the country which during the last ten years there have been smaller returns for the capital invested and for the energy, mental and manual, that has been put into it, than in the business of coal mining.

MINERS, DURING RIOT, TELL PLAN TO END STRIKE

CALUMET, Mich., Oct. 24.—While desperate rioting was going on here, the Calumet strikers' committee who sought Governor Ferris' influence in an effort to end the strike, gave the Chief Executive a statement of their desires, which was dispatched at once to the mine operators. The proposition follows:

That the Governor use his good offices in an effort to effect a settlement of the strike by proposing to mine owners that a committee be selected by them to meet a committee selected by the striking miners for the purpose of settling all matters pertaining to the strike issued that any proposition or propositions made by the mine owners in regard to hours of labor, wages and conditions of labor be submitted by the miners' committee to the striking miners for a referendum vote, provided that the mine owners make a binding agreement not to discriminate against the miners because of their belonging to a union."

During the rioting thirteen strikers were arrested, a number of strikers and forced broken heads and several officers were beaten or stabbed.

Reaching the Danger Point in Our Mexican Policy of Drift

"IT (the Democratic party) has failed to fulfill its platform promise to protect the lives and legitimate interests of American citizens throughout the world. * * * It has jeopardized the Monroe Doctrine."—From William R. Hearst's speech at the big Independence League rallies in New York on Tuesday night.

How instantly has the bitter truth of these statements been emphasized! With a German warship covering the landing of Diaz at Vera Cruz, other foreign warships hurrying there from Europe and a meeting of the Diplomatic Corps in Mexico City to decide on action independent of the United States, the Washington administration has surely drifted into the Shoals of Humiliation.

Ignoring the requests of Great Britain, Germany and Italy months ago to adopt some decisive policy toward Mexico for the protection of their people and property, the administration now finds itself in an incipient quarrel with Great Britain and, in turn, ignored by the others. Exasperated by the treatment of their countrymen and women at Torreon, the diplomats at Mexico find themselves compelled to act because the United States continues to shirk its responsibilities to its fellow nations, even to its own citizens.

Could any policy at all toward Mexico have been so disastrous, so ineffective, so belittling as our policy of "pitiful abandonment!"

If Anti-Home Rulers Can Defy the Law in Ireland, Why Not Mrs Pankhurst in England?

The Fact Is That BECAUSE WOMEN CAN'T VOTE They Must Not Even Question the Laws That Degrade Them

(Copyright, 1913, by Star Company.)

We offer you today another instalment from the good and much needed talk that Mrs. Pankhurst gave to her judge and jury—before they sentenced her to three years in prison. She didn't STAY in prison, because she had the courage to starve until they were forced to let her out for fear of killing her.

The judge in a solemn bromide fashion had informed Mrs. Pankhurst repeatedly that she ought to respect the law, and teach women to respect it. Mrs. Pankhurst was tried, and jailed, because she had told women they should not submit to laws that treated them unjustly.

At the same time, in Ulster, certain eminently respectable gentlemen WITH VOTES were organizing themselves into an army of one hundred thousand, had bought arms, and were openly announcing their intention of resisting with bullets and swords any effort by the British Empire to enforce home rule, regularly passed in the legislative body.

Nothing is done to punish those Ulster men WITH VOTES when they defy the law, but the law is quick to put in jail a woman who, without weapons or guns, opposes injustice. Mrs. Pankhurst said to her judge and jury:

> I am charged with inciting. What I say is that if it is right that I should be charged with inciting voteless women to these acts, should not those who have incited us be in the dock by my side?
>
> Within the last few days speeches have been made about Ulster, boasting that the men of Ulster are drilling in clubs and preparing for civil war.
>
> Threats are being made that Ireland is to be drowned in blood if the home rule bill is forced upon unwilling people in Ulster.
>
> And yet these people, who are being incited in that way, are not in the position I am in.
>
> They are voters. They have the constitutional means of getting redress for their grievances; but women, it is our place, as counsel said, to behave like ordinary citizens.
>
> We are not ordinary citizens, gentlemen. If we were ordinary citizens, armed with the power that ordinary citizens possess, that men have, we should get redress for our grievances by constitutional means.

Our distinguished recent visitor and newspaper worker, Lord Northcliffe, said that woman suffrage would fail in England, "because England would not be ruled by women."

At the same time, Lord Northcliffe said, "Home rule MUST FAIL IN IRELAND, because the north of Ireland would not consent to be ruled by the south."

The distinguished and noble Lord was horrified that women in England should object to laws that do not suit them, that degrade them, and render them helpless.

But he saw nothing wrong in the conduct of the men of Ulster arming themselves and defying the power of the Empire in the regular making of laws, in which those Ulster men might have a share.

That speech of Mrs. Pankhurst, which we shall administer to you in small and easily absorbed doses, contains in itself enough arguments for woman suffrage to convince the whole nation—and enough to stop the idiotic talk that is heard in this country against Mrs. Pankhurst and the courageous fight that she has made.

Boston Should Take a Notable Part in the International Urban Exposition at Lyons Next Summer

The city of Lyons in France will hold an International Urban Exhibition from May to November of next year. The national government of France stands as the patron of the exhibition. Boston ought to participate in it worthily.

France has always generously responded to the demands of our friendship save once, when she was miserably misrepresented by a king, who proved a greater enemy to the French nation than to us. Today she is the only nation on the continent which has agreed officially to participate in our Panama Exposition.

But, waiving our sentimental obligations, there is still the trade and commercial opportunity afforded by this exposition for Boston to exhibit to the world thronging to Lyons, those things of which she is proudest and which will attract attention to her existence and importance.

New York, Philadelphia and other commercial cities have agreed to a generous participation in this affair. We cannot afford to be out of it. The new spirit of push and optimism which has characterized our recent energies, will readily seize upon this exhibition as a chance not to be missed for exploiting the advantages of Boston in the commercial rivalry of the cities of the world.

Mayor Fitzgerald, who has given Boston so much impulse from his own extraordinary energy and hopefulness, ought to take the lead in providing for our participation in this French exhibition.

"Pipe all hands to take a wagonload of pumpkins to market!" This brisk and sailor-like language was uttered by Commander Slick of the battleship "Piffle," as he surveyed the busy scene in the frontyard, or quarter deck, of the noble vessel, which had recently been converted from a first-class sea fighter into a kitchen garden. Two promising young midshipmen, named respectively J. Elbert Tigsworthy and Orion Androicus Umps, were watering and hoeing a bed of asparagus, while a third, named Alaric Pingpong De Puyster, was trimming a Winter squash vine that clung gracefully around the mainmast. At this moment a fleshy and somewhat disagreeable looking person approached and said in a harsh voice, "Hi say, dontcherknow, hi disapproves hentirely of the United States 'avin' any navy! Keep yer navy down! Don't forget wot my friend Page said, Hamericans are Henglish bred and Henglish ruled!' You Johnnies 'ave got to know yer places!" With an affable smile Commander Slick replied: "My dear sir, rather than offend the feelings of England we will turn all our ships into floating grocery stores and laundries! Do come down to the drawing-room and have a cup of breakfast cocoa!" Suddenly the boatswain of the "Piffle," who was stationed upstairs—that is, aloft—cried in a voice of alarm, "Say, all the other countries are getting more battleships than we are! How about it?" With the most perfect self-possession Commander Slick responded, "If they come any nearer, send a boat and try to sell them some Early Rose potatoes!" Cocking his hat over his left ear, the disagreeable person left the ship, singing to himself in a cracked voice:

"The boldest, bravest 'eroes,
Wot heverybody fears,
With a tow row row, and a tow row row,
Are the British Grenadiers!"

The Vote That Impeached Sulzer

Why Did Five Judges Vote One Way, and Four Another, on the Same Facts and Questions of Law? It Is a Serious Problem

By REV. CHAS. H. PARKHURST.

An examination of the vote in the Sulzer impeachment starts an interesting question or two, and not only interesting, but momentous. How did the members of the court arrive respectively at their conclusions? Or, to make the inquiry more general, what is the material out of which opinions are ordinarily constructed?

Looking at the tally list we discover that a part of the judicial members of the court voted one way and a part the other way. On the first article of the charge five judges voted for conviction, four for acquittal. And yet the same questions of law came before the five judges as before the four, and also the same questions of fact came before the five as before the four. Why, then, did the five vote one way and the four the other way?

Two Groups Saw Things Differently, but Why Did They?

The immediate reply will be that the two groups saw things differently. Of course they saw things differently, but why did they see them differently?

The problem is an involved one and not so easily disposed of, and it is not only involved but serious, practically serious, and more serious in its relation to the judges than to that of the senators, for the presumption is that a man on the bench from the fact that he has been singled out for such preferment, and from the additional fact of his exceptional experience is able to regard such questions as come before the court with a singleness of eye not so likely to be expected of those less eminent and less experienced.

The same divergence is observable in the vote on the second article and also on the fourth.

The question we are considering is not which of the two possible verdicts was warranted by the facts in the case and by the legal principles involved in the case, but it is the far more significant question, Why did the matter set forth in the first and second articles shape itself in one way to the mind of four judges and in the opposite way to the mind of the five judges?

Judge Cullen, who was not only the presiding judge of the court, but the presiding genius of the occasion, voted not guilty on all the charges. Now, what was there in his instance that did not exist in the instances of some of the judges and in most of the senators that occasioned such divergence of conclusions? And how far does that divergence go toward invalidating the result?

This brings us back to our original inquiry: What are the elements in general out of which men compose their opinions?

There are three—truth, constitutional bias and personal interest.

If the judges had brought to the case no constitutional bias and no personal interest, they would all have seen the matter in the same way and have agreed on a verdict either of guilty or of not guilty.

Constitutional bias we are not responsible for. The finest judge in the world is to some degree possessed of it, although his competency as a judge will vary inversely with the degree to which he is possessed of it.

Personal interest we are responsible for. It is more than anything else the secret of our invalid judgments, whatever be the matter to which those judgments relate.

That fact has a very immediate bearing upon the trial that has just been closed. An inspection of the tally list does not suggest that the mental processes of the judges were influenced by considerations of personal preference. We are not arguing that the same is not true of the senatorial element of the court, although the tally list wears a singular complexion.

Any Senator Who Had a Personal Interest Is Disqualified

All we want to say is that any senator who before sitting on the impeachment jury had a personal interest in securing either the conviction or the acquittal of the defendant was thereby upon all principles of equity totally disqualified for serving as juror, and if the public considers that the verdict rendered was the result of such personal interest it will never cease to regard the trial as being to that extent a farce.

In every court proceeding the judge and jury are on trial as well as the defendant.

PROFANITY

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"GOL dern that man!" said Deacon Brown.
"I think he's the peskiest cuss in town.
I didn't think that he stood much show
When we traded hosses a week ago.
I knew that my hoss was a little blind,
But a woman could drive him, he was that kind.
His hoss had the heaves, she measly skate,
And I never knew it until too late.
A feller's chances is mighty slim
A-doin' business with whelps like him.

"When a man skins me," said Deacon Brown,
With a snap of his jaws and a vicious frown,
"He's skinnin' a feller what don't forget,
And I'll get my revenge some day, you bet.
If I was sinful, I would n't care,
But I am a deacon and I can't swear.
Say, I'd give him another hoss, gee whiz!
To call him just what I think he is!"

Dorothy Dix's Article —ON— Incivism—Failure to Give Woman the Ballot, Responsible for Evil Conditions That Allow Politicians to Loot the Country.

By DOROTHY DIX.

THERE is a great deal of talk just now about incivism.

Incivism is a nice, big, mouth-filling word that refers in an insidious and uncomplimentary way to those men who neglect their civic duty, principally by failing to vote.

Incivism is at the root of all of our political troubles. It is why we have corruption in politics, why grafters loot the treasury, why men like Mr. Murphy pick out our governors and senators, and so on. Nobody doubts that there are plenty of good, honest men—plenty of intelligent men—in the country to purify politics, and run things straight, and choose patriots for our public offices, but the trouble is that the thug, and the gunman, and the ward heelers vote early and often, and the decent, honest, intelligent men so often won't vote at all.

Votes for Women Only Cure for Crime of Incivism

Hence the crime of incivism, and the problem of the cure for it—how to get the good citizens to take an interest in politics, and to tear them away from their office or store long enough to vote for the right man, instead of permitting the corner saloon man to elect the wrong candidate for office.

The highbrows profess themselves puzzled by the problem, yet the answer is simple enough. It is: Give women the ballot.

Not that they have any superior civic wisdom that is greater than their husbands', or fathers', or brothers'. Simply that they have more civic conscience, and that when women have a right to vote they will not only vote themselves, but they will see to it that the men of their households do.

Women will do for the voting booth what she does for the church. She will keep it alive. If it were not for women there would be spider webs across the doors of ninety-nine churches out of a hundred. Not enough men, if left to their own volition in the matter would go to church to keep one first-class preacher or priest busy in a community.

Of course, there are a few exceptions—a few men who are really religious, of themselves—but the vast majority of men are indifferent, and occupied by other interests, and they go to church or stay at home, or play golf, according to what their wives think about the matter.

Women Responsible for Men's Attendance at Church

If they are married to women who are devout, their Sunday breakfasts are served in time, their Sunday clothes are laid out, and they are duly marched to the sanctuary. Otherwise they don't go.

Exactly the same thing will happen when women have the ballot. They will not only vote themselves, but they will make their mankind go with them to the polls, and that this is no mere theory has already been proved by the increased number of ballots that have been cast in the States where women have the franchise.

Also it is true that in most family circles the wife and not the husband furnishes the outside interest. She strikes the conversational note and not only talks the most, but decides what the talk shall be about.

Think over the households in which you visit. Why do you always discuss philanthropy at Smith's? Because Mrs. Smith is keenly interested in settlement work, and Smith's interested in it, too, because his wife is. Why do you talk about books at the Browns'? Because Mrs. Brown is fond of literature, and she gathers about her literary people, and Brown is interested in literature because his wife is.

Why do you talk about bridge and what the Four Hundred are doing, and the smart restaurants, and the new plays at the Joneses'? Because Mrs. Jones is a little butterfly and a social climber, and has no other idea in her head, and poor Jones is breaking his neck to supply Mrs. J. with the money she needs to outdress and outshine her neighbors.

Isn't it logical, then, isn't it certain, that when women get interested in politics—when they have a real voice in an election—that every political question will be threshed out in the home and that men's interest will be quickened and stimulated in politics, just because of their wives' interests and the family debate?

The one person on earth who can be guaranteed to wake a man up on any subject and keep him awake is the wife of his bosom, and you may rely upon it, Mr. Reformer, that she will be a potent antidote for incivism if you will only give her the ballot.

Think Over Conditions in Households You Visit.

It isn't because your merchant, and banker, and college professor doesn't know his political duty that politics have gotten into such a state. It's because he doesn't do what he knows he ought to do. As a matter of fact, he's always intending to take a real interest in politics, and help to clean up things, but he's busy about other things, and he puts off registering until it's too late, or he doesn't go to the political meeting and uphold the hands of the righteous, because somebody suggests the theatre, or a game of cards, or some other trifling diversion.

He just needs somebody to remind him that it's registration day, or to give him a little push in the right direction, and Friend Wife's hand is the only hand that can do it.

If she were going to register, too, or if she were personally interested in the candidates there'd be another story told on election day.

Of course, it may be said that it is just as important to women to brace up their husbands politically when they haven't the vote as it will be when they get a vote, and that women will be no more affected by legislation then than they are now. True, but there are very few of us altruistic enough to take a violent vicarious interest in things.

If you would take away from women the hope of personal salvation, and assure them that no one not a male could reach heaven anyhow, no matter how fitted she was for heaven, how many women do you suppose would work their fingers to the bone getting up bazaars to support the church?

Neither can anybody expect women to be particularly interested in discussing politics in the home so long as it is officially held that politics is the one subject with which the feminine intelligence is incapable of dealing. From all accounts politics is a lively enough subject in the places where women vote.

If you want to interest men in politics, and want the good citizens to vote, just give their wives the ballot, Mr. Reformer. The women will do the rest.

LAPIS LAZULI

By CONSTANCE CLARKE

DULL drops of blue and burning deep,
Like frozen jewels without a gleam
Of fire within their depths, and yet
The east where Cleopatra met
With Antony, as in a dream
Is here reflected—perfumes rise
And drift beneath the tropic skies—
And languorous songs of eastern lands
Float out across Egyptian sands.
And jewels—dull stones of burning blue,
Passionless drops of frozen dew—
Reflect the Orient's changing skies
Down deep within their mystic eyes.
The secret of the east they keep;
If we would read, we must read deep.
